

The Great Presidents' Day Parade

Short Story

The Great Presidents' Day Parade

The parade started at noon, and the crowd quickly gathered along the sidewalks. It was a beautiful day, with a clear blue sky and a gentle breeze. The children were especially excited, waving their flags and cheering for the parade.

First came the marching band, playing patriotic songs. They were followed by the fire trucks, with their sirens blaring. Then came the floats carrying the presidents, each in their own special carriage. The crowd was so large that it took hours to get to the end of the parade.

As the parade ended, the children were still cheering and waving their flags. They had a wonderful time, and they all agreed that it was the best parade they had ever seen.

Encyclopedia of American Short Films, 1926-1959 Graham Webb, 2020-07-10 Short subject films have a long history in American cinemas. These could be anywhere from 2 to 40 minutes long and were used as a filler in a picture show that would include a cartoon, a newsreel, possibly a serial, and a short before launching into the feature film. Shorts could tackle any topic of interest: an unusual travelogue, a comedy, musical revues, sports, nature, or popular vaudeville acts. With the advent of sound on film in the mid to late 1920s, makers of earlier silent short subjects began experimenting with the short films, using them as a testing ground for the use of sound in feature movies. After the Second World War and the rising popularity of television, short subject films became far too expensive to produce and they had mostly disappeared from the screens by the late 1950s. This encyclopedia offers comprehensive listings of American short subject films from the 1920s through the 1950s. The Golden Book Magazine, 1927 The Forum, 1927 American Monthly Review of Reviews Albert Shaw, 1928 For No Reason at All Jeffrey A. Hinkelman, 2022-02-04 The years following the signing of the Armistice saw a transformation of traditional attitudes regarding military conflict as America attempted to digest the enormity and futility of the First World War. During these years, popular film culture in the United States created new ways of addressing the impact of the war on both individuals and society. Filmmakers with direct experience of combat created works that promoted their own ideas about the depiction of wartime service, ideas that frequently conflicted with established heroic tropes for the portrayal of warfare on film. Those filmmakers spent years modifying existing standards and working through a variety of storytelling options before achieving a consensus regarding the fitting method for rendering war on screen. That consensus incorporated facets of the experience of Great War veterans and these countered and undermined previously accepted narrative strategies. This process reached its peak during the Pre Code Era of the early 1930s when the initially prevailing narrative would be briefly supplanted by an entirely new approach that questioned the very premises of wartime service. Even more significantly, the rhetoric of these films argued strongly for an antiwar stance that questioned every aspect of the wartime experience. For No Reason at All: The Changing Narrative of the First World War in American Film discusses a variety of Great War-themed films made from 1915 to the present, tracing the changing approaches to the conflict over time. Individual chapters focus on movie antecedents, animated films, and comedies; the influence of literary precursors; the African American film industry; women-centered films; and the effect of the Second World War on depictions of the First World War. Films discussed include Hearts of the World, The Cradle of Courage, Birthright, The Big Parade, She Goes to War, Doughboys, Young Eagles, The Last Flight, Broken Lullaby, Lafayette Escadrille, and Wonder Woman among many others.
