

Should Life Sustaining Medical Care be Rationed Based on Age

By 2040, people over 65 will account for 21% of the population and consume 45% of all health care expenditures.

- 1/3 of the annual Medicare costs are for the 5-6% of beneficiaries who die that year. (Is this a problem ...or is it just an expense to be expected?)
- 40 million Americans have no medical insurance and are at risk of being denied basic healthcare services. At the same time the government pays most of the healthcare costs of the elderly. The amount of $$ aid to the elderly is greater than to any other group and the elderly (as a group) have the highest disposable income. Fair?
- British vs. American system
- British system strives for basic medical care for all versus expensive technology for the few who might benefit. Results = nearly identical health status and life expectancy at 60% of the cost

Yes?

- Should medical care for the elderly who have lived their natural life expectancy consist only of pain relief rather than expensive services that serve only to forestall death?
- Is it both economically valid and morally acceptable to limit health care for the elderly?
- "Aging and death in old age are inevitable....But premature death, and bad schools, and blighted urban areas of great poverty are not inevitable"
- Current situation is a result of U.S being an "...affluent, hyper-individualistic, technology driven society"

No?

- Medical decisions should not be based on whether or not an individual is "deserving" of care. Society doesn't have the right or capability of making that decision.
- "Slippery-slope" argument. Limiting high-tech care may lead to other limitations in care
- Couldn't other health care expenditures being questioned as well.
- (Public monies and health insurance monies for infertility treatments in an already overcrowded nation/world)

The Ethics of Health Care Rationing: An Introduction Greg

Bognar, Iwao Hirose, 2014-06-05 Should organ transplants be given to patients who have waited the longest or need it most urgently or those whose survival prospects are the best The rationing of health care is universal and inevitable taking place in poor and affluent countries in publicly funded and private health care systems Someone must budget for as well as dispense health care whilst aging populations severely stretch the availability of resources The Ethics of Health Care Rationing is a clear and much needed introduction to this increasingly important topic considering and assessing the major ethical problems and dilemmas about the allocation scarcity and rationing of health care Beginning with a helpful overview of why rationing is an ethical problem the authors examine the following key topics What is the value of health How can it be measured What does it mean that a treatment is good value for money What sort of distributive principles utilitarian egalitarian or prioritarian should we rely on when thinking about health care rationing Does rationing health care unfairly discriminate against the elderly and people with disabilities Should patients be held responsible for their health Why does the debate on responsibility for health lead to issues about socioeconomic status and social inequality Throughout the book examples from the US UK and other countries are used to illustrate the ethical issues at stake Additional features such as chapter summaries annotated further reading and discussion questions make this an ideal starting point for students new to the subject not only in philosophy but also in closely related fields such as politics health economics public health medicine nursing and social work

The Elderly Martin Lyon Levine, 2017-05-15 Aging is a public health priority that is becoming increasingly important in both developed and less developed nations with individual health care providers and law makers each facing difficult ethical and policy dilemmas The complex issues physicians deal with include informed consent and patient decision making capacity use of advance care planning and decision making by family and medical staff and withdrawing and withholding life sustaining interventions Broader questions include has aging been over medicalized Is it ethical for older patients to receive less medical care than younger ones through unspoken practice or formal rationing Is there inevitable conflict between the generations over scarce medical resources How should physician patient and family confront end of life decisions How have different nations responded to increasing numbers of the elderly Have social values changed as to family responsibility and individual autonomy This volume brings together the most significant published essays in the field

The Generational Equity Debate John Williamson, Diane M. Watts-Roy, Eric R. Kingson, 1999

Contains 13 essays which discuss social security and Medicare policies and the equitable distribution of social benefits across generations Debates the existence of a crisis and examines proposals for the reform of social security financing
