Export Opportunities and Barriers in African Growth and Opportunity Act-Eligible Countries, Inv. 332-464 , State Failure, Sovereignty and Effectiveness Gerard Kreijen, Sir Robert Y. Jennings, QC, 2004-07-01 This comprehensive study of State failure upholds that the collapse of States in sub Saharan Africa is a self inflicted problem caused by the abandonment of the principle of effectiveness during decolonization On the one hand the abandonment of effectiveness may have facilitated the recognition of the new African States but on the other it did lead to the creation of States that were essentially powerless some of which became utter failures Written in a style both provocative and unorthodox and using convincing arguments this study casts doubt on some of the most sacred principles of the modern doctrine of international law It establishes that the declaratory theory of recognition cannot satisfactorily explain the continuing existence of failed States It also demonstrates that the principled assertion of the right to self determination as the basis for independence in Africa has turned the notion of sovereignty into a formal legal figment without substance This book is a plea for more realism in international law Pensive pessimists in the tradition of Hobbes will probably love it Idealists in the tradition of Grotius may hate it but they will find it very difficult to reject its conclusions

Exchanging Our Country Marks Michael A. Gomez, 2000-11-09 The transatlantic slave trade brought individuals from diverse African regions and cultures to a common destiny in the American South In this comprehensive study Michael Gomez establishes tangible links between the African American community and its African origins and traces the process by which African populations exchanged their distinct ethnic identities for one defined primarily by the conception of race He examines transformations in the politics social structures and religions of slave populations through 1830 by which time the contours of a new African American identity had begun to emerge After discussing specific ethnic groups in Africa Gomez follows their movement to North America where they tended to be amassed in recognizable concentrations within individual colonies and later states For this reason he argues it is possible to identify particular ethnic cultural influences and ensuing social formations that heretofore have been considered unrecoverable Using sources pertaining to the African continent as well as runaway slave advertisements ex slave narratives and folklore Gomez reveals concrete and specific links between particular African populations and their North American progeny thereby shedding new light on subsequent African American social formation

Country Reports on Human Rights Practices,1988 Sierra Leone Katrina Manson,James Knight,2009 Travel Guide Peacebuilding Legacy Sukanya Podder,2022-08-08 A fundamental challenge plagues the global peacebuilding community How can technocratic approaches to peacebuilding that are rooted in short term project based execution of activities further the longer term transformative outcomes like altering young people's attitudes and beliefs about peace and violence In response to this global challenge in Peacebuilding Legacy Sukanya Podder analyzes the long term effects of peacebuilding programmes involving children and young people Podder unpacks the concept of peacebuilding legacy through the lens of time transformation and intergenerational peace Podder also develops unique qualitative cues for measuring legacy in terms of the institutional normative and organizational logics If norms resonate strongly with the local context they are likely to encourage strong retention and meaningful adoption over time Successful institutionalization of project models through planned handover to successor national organizations or government departments holds the key to stronger local ownership Organizational learning and reflection can support this process through a more strategic approach to programming and through post exit studies Regarding attitude change Podder found that the media and peace education projects that targeted individuals ingrained beliefs and values but overlooked the role of group social norms had only limited persuasive effects To shift the values practices norms and beliefs of the younger generation the mindset of the older generation must also be targeted Changes in the legal political economic and other social institutions are critical for long term and meaningful transformation

This requires adopting an ecological model of peace
