ABSTRACT

This research is driven by the aim to comprehensively examine the multifaceted role of civil society organizations (CSOs) in advancing the cause of good governance, particularly within the distinctive context of Bangladesh. Employing a qualitative methodology, the study relies on in-depth interviews conducted with an array of stakeholders, including representatives from CSOs, government officials, and members of the community. Qualitative content analysis is employed to extract key themes from the interview data, complemented by an extensive review of pertinent literature. The findings of this research illuminate the nuanced understanding of good governance among participants, emphasizing its broader significance beyond development as a fundamental cornerstone of social justice and the safeguarding of citizens' rights. CSOs, as highlighted in the findings, serve as central actors in the promotion of good governance, engaging in advocacy, monitoring, capacity building, and citizen engagement. They play instrumental roles in driving policy reforms, ensuring transparency in governance, and bridging the divide between government institutions and local communities. While acknowledging challenges faced by CSOs, including legal constraints and resource limitations, the research identifies opportunities for enhancing their impact through collaborative efforts, technology utilization, and the promotion of internal transparency and accountability. Though assessing the impact of CSOs remains a complex task, participants underscore the feasibility of context-specific indicators and demonstrable outcomes. The research also recognizes limitations, such as potential participant bias and the qualitative nature of the study, and provides significant implications for policymakers, CSOs, and scholars. Recommendations encompass legal reforms to bolster CSOs, fostering increased collaboration, actively engaging with youth and marginalized communities, promoting international cooperation, and prioritizing capacity building to strengthen CSOs' contributions to the advancement of good governance in Bangladesh.

1. INTRODUCTION

Bangladesh, located in the South Asian region, is renowned for its extensive historical background, unique cultural heritage, and a population density that places it among the highest globally. Bangladesh has seen a multifaceted array of political and socio-economic transformations since achieving independence in 1971 (Mehta et al., 2021). The current era has witnessed significant advancements as well as ongoing difficulties, hence emphasizing the paramount importance of striving for effective governance within the country (Transparency International Bangladesh, 2020). The presence of corruption, a lack of transparency, and political instability have presented substantial obstacles to the progress of the nation and the welfare of its populace (The Asia Foundation, 2018). Within this particular framework, civil society organizations have arisen as crucial catalysts for transformation, assuming a central position in both advocating for and actively contributing to the advancement of effective government (Toepler et al., 2020).

This study undertakes a qualitative investigation to elucidate the complex dynamics of civil society's contribution to the promotion of good governance in Bangladesh, as well as to comprehend the factors that impact their efficacy in this pursuit. The history of Bangladesh following its independence is characterized by a notable display of resilience and a process of transformation. Following a protracted and arduous struggle for self-determination, the country faced the formidable challenge of constructing a cohesive and functional state. Throughout its history, Bangladesh has made significant strides in all facets of development, including but not limited to education, healthcare, and poverty alleviation (Bank, 2020). Nevertheless, the process of nation-building has not been immune to the challenges that often arise. The achievement of effective governance poses a significant obstacle for Bangladesh (Ullah et al., 2022). The concept of good governance encompasses fundamental concepts including transparency, accountability, involvement, and adherence to the rule of law (United Nations Development Programme, 2019).

According to the Asian growth Bank, the job of governance extends beyond the mere running of a nation and encompasses the crucial aspects of fostering socio-economic growth and protecting the rights of its population (Asian growth Bank, 2020). Unfortunately, the progress of Bangladesh in achieving good governance has been impeded by various obstacles. The presence of corruption has become pervasive across all

Insiders and Outsiders Francis B. Nyamnjoh, 2013-07-04 This study of xenophobia and how it both exploits and excludes is an incisive commentary on a globalizing world and its consequences for ordinary people s lives Using the examples of Sub Saharan Africa s two most economically successful nations it meticulously documents the fate of immigrants and the new politics of insiders and outsiders As globalization becomes a palpable reality citizenship sociality and belonging are subjected to stresses to which few societies have devised a civil response beyond yet more controls State and Economic Development in Africa Aaron Tesfaye, 2017-07-20 This book critically assesses the impact of Ethiopia s policy of Agriculture Development Led Industrialization Employing qualitative and quantitative analysis it presents empirical evidence suggesting persistent economic growth The research highlights improvements in infrastructure health care education poverty alleviation as well reductions in infant mortality rate The impact of this economic growth has however had led to only slight improvements in the plight of the poor The author argues that while significant steps have been achieved with measurable economic gains there are still undeniable obstacles within the federal system prevailing patron client relationships constraints on state capacity to efficiently and effectively implement policy and bureaucratic rent seeking in the provision of public goods The author concludes that these problems will have to be resolved before Ethiopia s political economy can achieve the stage of sustainable development

A Decade of Human Security David R. Black, 2016-03-03 Human security has been advanced as an alternative to traditional state based conceptualizations of security yet controversies about the use and abuse of the concept remain Investigating innovations in the advancement of the human security agenda over the past decade this book identifies themes and processes around which consensus for future policy action might be built It considers the ongoing debates regarding the human security agenda explores prospects and projects for the advancement of human security addresses issues of human security as emerging forms of new multilateralisms and examines claims that human security is being undermined by US unilateralisms This comprehensive volume explores the theoretical debate surrounding human security and details the implications for practical application It will prove ideal for students of international relations security studies and development studies Decentralization in Ethiopia Taye Assefa, Tegegne Gebre-Egziabher, 2007

The 1991 government change in Ethiopia ushered in a centralised system of governance aimed to bring about harmony and cooperation between different groups and to promote local self rule. It has proceeded in two phases: 1991-2001 centred on creating and powering National Regional Governments termed mid level decentralisation. Further powers were devolved in 2001 through the District Level Decentralization Program and Urban Management Program. This volume brings together studies by the Forum for Social Studies and others with the aim of identifying knowledge gaps for further research and to generate debate on the issues in Ethiopia. The study is in two parts: a literature review seeking to document existing studies and highlight research gaps and field work which involved a rapid assessment of eight weredas and two kifle ketemas in Addis Ababa. The other three studies are synopses of master theses submitted to the Institute of Regional and Local Development Studies of Addis Ababa University Modernising Traditions and Traditionalising Modernity in Africa

Nyamnjoh, Francis B., 2015-09-23 Chieftaincy in Africa has displayed remarkable dynamics and adaptability to new socio-economic and political developments without becoming totally transformed in the process. Almost everywhere on the continent, chiefdoms and chiefs have become active agents in the quest for ethnic cultural symbols as a way of maximising opportunities at the centre of bureaucratic and state power and at the home village where control over land and labour often require both financial and symbolic capital. Chieftaincy remains central to ongoing efforts at developing democracy and accountability in line with the expectations of Africans as individual citizens and also as subjects of various cultural communities. This book uses Cameroon and Botswana as case studies to argue that the rigidity and prescriptiveness of modernist partial theories have left a major gap in scholarship on chiefs and chieftaincy in Africa. It stresses that studies of domesticated agency in Africa are sorely needed to capture the creative ongoing processes and to avoid over-emphasising structures and essentialist perceptions on chieftaincy and the cultural communities that claim and are claimed by it.

Protecting Minority Rights in African Countries John M. Mbaku, 2018-01-26 In this enlightening book John Mukum Mbaku analyses the main challenges of constitutional design and the construction of governance institutions in Africa today. He argues that the central issues are providing each country with a constitutional order that is capable of successfully managing sectarian conflict and enhancing peaceful coexistence, protecting the rights of citizens including those of minorities, minimizing the monopolization of political space by the majority to the detriment of minorities and effectively preventing government impunity. Mbaku offers a comprehensive analysis of various approaches to the management of diversity and shows how these approaches can inform Africa's struggle to promote peace and good governance. He explores in depth the existence of dysfunctional and anachronistic laws and institutions inherited from the colonial state and the process through which laws and institutions are formulated or constructed, adopted and amended. A close look at the constitutional experiences of the American Republic provides important lessons for constitutional design and constitutionalism in Africa.

Additionally comparative politics and comparative constitutional law also provide important lessons for the management of diversity in African countries Mbaku recommends state reconstruction through constitutional design as a way for each African country to provide itself with laws and institutions that reflect the realities of each country including the necessary mechanisms and tools for the protection of the rights of minorities From students and scholars to NGOs lawyers and policymakers this unique and judicious book is an essential tool for all those seeking to understand and improve governance and development in Africa Rights and the Politics of Recognition in Africa Harri Englund, Francis B.

Khartoum, Sudan, 15-19 December 2002 Abdel Ghaffar Muhammad Ahmad, 2002 The Capacity of Central and East European Interest Groups to Participate in EU Governance Daniela Obradovic, Heiko Pleines, 2012-02-24 The integration of ten Central and East European countries CEEC into the EU as part of the 2004 and 2007 enlargements poses new challenges to EU governance as the number of countries involved has thereby increased dramatically However the actors coming from the new member states also face challenges as they attempt to integrate themselves into EU decision making processes This book analyses the attempts of civil society organisations from the Czech Republic and Poland to engage in EU governance in four policy fields. The guiding question is whether civil society organisations from the Central and East European member states have or can gain the capacity for meaningful participation in EU governance. After an introductory part which outlines the analytical framework and offers a review of the literature, the actors and rules of EU governance are profiled. The third and fourth parts of the book then present case studies. The case studies address the civil society organisations most actively involved in EU governance, namely typical NGOs, trade unions, employers' organisations and business associations.

The Power of Civil Society in the Middle East and North Africa Ibrahim Natil, Chiara Pierobon, Lilian Tauber, 2019-05-24. This book investigates the power of civil society in the Middle East and North Africa (MENA) in the context of the post Arab Spring era as well as more long standing challenges and constraints in the region. In recent years, local civil society actors have faced significant challenges from social conservatism, conflict, violence and the absence of democracy and exclusive political systems. Over the course of the book, the authors investigate how the sector has succeeded in achieving its own objectives despite these shifting conditions, the restrictive political environment and the complexity of the socio-cultural and economic context. Structured around the three themes of peace building, development and change, the book also addresses challenges faced by civil society organizations linked to ethnic, linguistic and cultural diversities as well as religious salient differences that are crucial markers of social and political identity. Case studies are drawn from the Palestinian Occupied Territories, Jordan, Iran, Nigeria, Niger, Egypt and Morocco, and particular effort has been made to showcase original research from contributors who are from the region. This book will be of particular interest to researchers working on development, peace building, conflict resolution, civil society and politics within the MENA region.

The Politics of the Black Sea Region Carol Weaver, 2016-02-24. The Black Sea region is a dynamic and complex area in which many national and international actors have key interests, including Russia and the US. The European Union stretches to the sea's western coast where it meets former Soviet territory as well as EU candidate Turkey. Regional tensions include those over NATO enlargement, a US anti-ballistic missile system, access to the Black Sea, democratization, spheres of interest and the conflict zones of Abkhazia, South Ossetia, Nagorno Karabakh and Transnistria. In addition, the region's close proximity to the Caspian basin offers the prospect of alternative energy resources and routes to western states. The Politics of the Black Sea Region: EU Neighbourhood Conflict Zone or Future Security Community explores and examines the many diverse political, security and economic interests that affect the region and the possible outcomes for it. By reviewing the wider history and examining the political systems and policies of the Black Sea nations and organizations as well as analyzing current tensions and future trends, it provides an invaluable, comprehensive and unique political guide to this fascinating area.
