tion and discussion of outstanding recent advances and developments in the field of numerical process and device simulation. Driven by the ongoing miniaturization in semiconductor fabrication technology, the variety of topics discussed at this meeting reflects the ever growing complexity of the subject. Apart from the classic topics like process device and interconnect simulation, mesh generation, a broad spectrum of numerical issues and compact modeling, new simulation approaches like atomistic and first principles methods have emerged as important fields of research and are currently making their way into standard TCAD suites.

Ashok, 2002-08-09 This book focuses on the deliberate introduction and manipulation of defects and impurities in order to engineer desired properties in semiconductor materials and devices. In view of current exciting developments in wide bandgap semiconductors like GaN for blue light emission as well as high speed and high temperature electronics, dopant and defect issues relevant to these materials are addressed. Also featured are semiconductor nanocavities and nano structures with emphasis on the formation and impact of vacancy type defects. Defect reaction problems pertaining to impurity gettering, precipitation and hydrogen passivation are specific examples of defect engineering that improve the electronic quality of the material. A number of papers also deal with characterization techniques needed to study and to identify defects in materials and device structures. Finally, papers also address issues such as interface control and passivation, application of ion implantation, plasma treatment and rapid thermal processing for creating activating, suppressing trap levels and device applications.
