

An aerial photograph of a residential area. In the foreground, there's a large parking lot with several cars. To the right, there's a cluster of buildings with red roofs, including a prominent two-story house with a red roof and a smaller building attached to it. A paved walkway leads towards these buildings. In the background, there's a dense forest of green trees, and further back, a body of water is visible.

Longfellow's Country

Christine Guth

Longfellow's Country:

Transatlantic Literature and Author Love in the Nineteenth Century Paul Westover, Ann Wierda Rowland, 2016-09-22 This book is about Anglo American literary heritage. It argues that readers on both sides of the Atlantic shaped the contours of international English in the 1800s expressing love for books and authors in a wide range of media and social practices. It highlights how in the wake of American independence the affection bestowed on authors who became international objects of celebration and commemoration was a major force in the invention of transnational English literature the popular canon defined by shared language and tradition. While love as such is difficult to quantify and recover the records of such affection survive not just in print but also in other media in monuments in architecture and in the ephemera of material culture. Thus this collection brings into view a wide range of nineteenth century expressions of love for literature and its creators.

Longfellow's Tattoos Christine Guth, 2004 Charles Longfellow son of Henry Wadsworth Longfellow arrived in Yokohama in 1871 intending a brief visit and stayed for two years. He returned to Boston laden with photographs curios and art objects as well as the elaborate tattoos he had collected on his body. His journals correspondence and art collection dramatically demonstrate America's early impressions of Japanese culture and his personal odyssey illustrates the impact on both countries of globetrotting tourism. Interweaving Longfellow's experiences with broader issues of tourism and cultural authenticity. Christine Guth discusses the ideology of tourism and the place of Japan within nineteenth century round the world travel. This study goes beyond simplistic models of reciprocal influence and authenticity to a more synergistic account of cross cultural dynamics.

Homes and Haunts Alison Booth, 2016 This is the first full length study of literary tourism in North America as well as Britain and a unique exploration of popular response to writers literary house museums and the landscapes or countries associated with their lives and works. An interdisciplinary study ranging from 1820-1940. Homes and Haunts Touring Writers Shrines and Countries unites museum and tourism studies book history narrative theory theories of gender space and things and other approaches to depict and interpret the haunting experiences of exhibited houses and the curious history of topo biographical writing about famous authors. In illustrated chapters that blend Victorian and recent first person encounters that range from literary shrines and plaques to guidebooks memoirs portraits and monuments Alison Booth discusses pilgrims such as William and Mary Howitt Anna Maria and Samuel Hall and Elbert Hubbard and magnetic hosts and guests as Washington Irving Wordsworth Martineau Longfellow Hawthorne James and Dickens Virginia Woolf's feminist response to homes and haunts shapes a chapter on Mary Russell Mitford Gaskell and the Brontes and another on the Carlyles house and Monk's House. Booth rediscovers collections of personalities haunted shrines and imaginative re-enactments that have been submerged by a century of academic literary criticism.
