Virtualpolitik Elizabeth Mathews Losh, 2009 Government media making from official websites to whistleblowers e mail and its sometimes unintended consequences Today government agencies not only have official Web sites but also sponsor moderated chats blogs digital video clips online tutorials videogames and virtual tours of national landmarks Sophisticated online marketing campaigns target citizens with messages from the government even as officials make news with digital gaffes involving embarrassing e mails instant messages and videos In Virtualpolitik Elizabeth Losh closely examines the government s digital rhetoric in such cases and its dual role as mediamaker and regulator Looking beyond the usual focus on interfaces operations and procedures Losh analyzes the ideologies revealed in government s digital discourse its anxieties about new online practices and what happens when officially sanctioned material is parodied remixed or recontextualized by users Losh reports on a video game that panicked the House Intelligence Committee pedagogic and therapeutic digital products aimed at American soldiers government Web sites in the weeks and months following 9 11 PowerPoint presentations by government officials and gadflies e mail as a channel for whistleblowing digital satire of surveillance practices national digital libraries and computer based training for health professionals Losh concludes that the government's virtualpolitik its digital realpolitik aimed at preserving its own power is focused on regulation casting as criminal such common online activities as file sharing video game play and social networking This policy approach she warns indefinitely postpones building effective institutions for electronic governance ignores constituents need to shape electronic identities to suit their personal politics and misses an opportunity to learn how citizens can have meaningful interaction with the virtual manifestations of the state
