Eocene Biodiversity Gregg F. Gunnell,2001-09-30 Initially this work was designed to document and study the diversification of modern mammalian groups and was quite successful and satisfying However as field and laboratory work continued there began to develop a suspicion that not all of the Eocene story was being told It became apparent that most fossil samples especially those from the American West were derived from similar preservational circumstances and similar depositional settings A program was initiated to look for other potential sources of fossil samples either from non traditional lithologies or from geographic areas that were not typically sampled As this program of research grew it began to demonstrate that different lithologies and different geographic areas told different stories from those that had been developed based on more typical faunal assemblages This book is conceived as an introduction to non traditional Eocene fossils samples and as a place to document and discuss features of these fossil assemblages that are rare or that come from rarely represented habitats Starved Rock State Park Nancy Hill Barta,2007 Starved Rock State Park is located midway between Ottawa and LaSalle The park has more than 2 630 acres that include 18 beautiful canyons and waterfalls One of the largest Native American encampments the Grand Village of the Kaskaskia was located near Starved Rock Fr Jacques Marquette and Louis Joliet are believed to be the first white men to have set eyes upon the rock Ren Robert Cavelier Sieur de La Salle built Fort St Louis on the rock Legend has it that a band of Illinois Indians starved to death while seeking refuge from its enemies on the rock hence the name Starved Rock Starved Rock State Park has remained virtually unchanged through the years as its history is told through the authors vintage postcards German New River Settlement, Virginia
