Mahogany Tree:

The Mahogany Tree Chaloner & Fleming, Liverpool, 1850 The mahogany tree [issued by Chaloner and Fleming]. Chaloner and Fleming, 1850 The Penny Magazine of the Society for the Diffusion of Useful Knowledge, 1832 Somatic Cell Genetics of Woody Plants M.R. Ahuja, 2012-12-06 Most forest tree species were considered recalcitrant a decade ago but now with the improved in vitro techniques some progress has been made towards culture of tree species Micro propagation has been achieved from the juvenile tissues of a number of forest tree species On the other hand tissues from most mature trees are still very difficult to grow and differentiate in vitro Nevertheless there has been slow but steady progress in the application of tissue culture technology for culture of tissues organs cells and protoplasts of tree species As compared to most agricultural crops and herbaceous plant species trees are a different lot They have long generation cycles They are highly heterozygous and have a large reservoir of genetic variability Because of this genetic variability their response in vitro is also variable On a single medium the response of tissues from different trees genotypes of a single species may be quite different some responding by induction of growth and differentiation while others showing minimal or no growth at all That makes the somatic cell genetics of woody plants somewhat difficult but at the same time interesting
