Long Term Care For The Elderly A Comparative View Of Layers Of Care:

Long-Term Care for the Elderly Betty H. Landsberger, 2024-05-10 In the 1980s the need for long term care for elderly people in Western societies was quite obvious from the increasing numbers of old and very old people in the population. Countries had responded in a number of different ways to cope with this need. Originally published in 1985, the central theme of this book is to explore these different ways and to probe beneath the surface level of institutions and specific programs. Beneath this level are a number of layers of care consisting of attitudes, beliefs, and values on a social as well as personal level. Thus chapters two to six explore the surface level of services, goods, treatments, institutions, etc. provided in different countries for long term care. Chapter seven looks at another layer, the role of government; chapter eight at ethical issues of human rights; and chapter nine at the base layer, the views of elderly people themselves. The book draws mainly on information from the UK, USA, Germany, and Scandinavia and will be of interest to all concerned with the health and social welfare of the elderly. National Library of Medicine Current Catalog National Library of Medicine (U.S.), Social Security Bulletin, 1986. Current Catalog National Library of Medicine (U.S.), First multi year cumulation covers six years 1965-70. The Graying of the World Laura Katz Olson, 1994. This unique book studies America's frail older population relative to the elderly in ten other nations. It contains a cross national assessment of approaches to long term care for the elderly and explains the nature and extent of current and future problems related to caring for the functionally impaired elderly. By studying and analyzing the ongoing struggles of other nations in their attempts to cope with growing populations of frail elderly, readers in the U.S. can expand the parameters of their own national debate on the subject. The Graying of the World shows the political, economic, and social context in which decisions on elder care are based and evaluates how successful various countries' programs have been. Chapters outline alternative approaches taken by disparate types of national systems, highlighting unique and creative solutions to provide useful information on new and alternative ways to respond to personal and public issues related to elder care. The elderly and their care in Finland, France, Germany, Great Britain, Israel, Japan, People's Republic of China, Sweden, and Yugoslavia are discussed, as are the elderly in Canada and the United States. Chapters cover the following topics for each country: the increasing number of frail elderly and their costly health needs; the current and future role of the state in elder care; the current and future role of the family in elder care; types of support services offered for the elderly, including in-home care, community-based care, and institutional care; the relationship of a nation's political economy to its attitude and policy on long term care; innovative approaches to elder care. Practitioners, decision makers, and the concerned general public will all find The Graying of the World an interesting and informative book that expands the discussion of health care options available for the elderly. As such, the book is also a helpful text for undergraduate and beginning graduate students of gerontology, public policy, and comparative politics, as well as for social service practitioners. It provokes much needed conversation on developing a healthcare plan for the future that meets the needs of a large elderly population Setting Limits Daniel Callahan, 1995-03-01 A provocative call to rethink America's values in health care

Suicide Among the Elderly in Long-Term Care Facilities Nancy Osgood, Barbara Brant, Aaron P. Lipman, 1991 This is the first large scale study of suicide in a population of institutionalized older adults From their findings the authors identify the most at risk groups and highlight the major factors contributing to suicide in older adults in institutions The study described in this work employed a sample survey design More than 1000 administrators of long term care facilities in the United States were randomly selected and surveyed about their staff and facilities and the incidence and type of suicidal behaviors which occurred among residents in 1984 and 1985 Results of the study confirmed that suicidal behavior occurred in approximately 20 percent of the facilities who responded High risk groups of residents included white males and the old old 75 years and older The survey reveals that certain environmental factors such as the size of the facility staff turnover rate per diem cost and auspices public private and religious were related to the occurrence and outcome of suicidal behavior Suggestions for suicide prevention based on these findings are also presented The book is divided into three parts Part One examines various types of long term care facilities including skilled nursing facilities intermediate care facilities and adult homes Part Two highlights design methodology and findings from the national study of suicide in long term care facilities Case profiles of suicidal residents are included to provide a more personal account of suicide behavior and to illustrate important factors in the older individual's decision to end her his life Case profiles of four institutions are also included to highlight environmental factors related to suicidal behavior Part Three focuses on suicide prevention Suggestions on the treatment of depression in the elderly suicide prevention techniques and the ethics of suicide are discussed in detail This book makes valuable reading for professionals involved in the care of the elderly

Last Rights Barbara Logue, 1993-01-01 Several recent trends demographic social and economic are increasing the incidence and public support of deliberate death among the old and sick The number of elderly people is at an all time high Medical technology can prolong the lives of these men and women but it cannot keep them independent free of pain or competent to manage their own affairs Never before have so many been so sick for so long Changes in the size and structure of the American family make long term home care almost impossible while exorbitant health costs and scarce resources limit the provision of high quality care by paid workers Researcher Barbara J Logue refers to any deliberate behavior that causes death as death control She points out that death control like birth control involves very serious and deeply personal decisions choices that ought to be made on the basis of reliable information with care and compassion without coercion She goes on to assert that like birth control death control should be performed legally and with the help of the medical community Without access to assisted deaths many frail old people are left to endure wretched deaths Some die slowly of neglect or malnutrition in nursing homes Others take their own lives sometimes by violent means while they can still act independently because they are afraid that no one will help them if they wait until they are very sick Some die alone fearful of implicating friends or relatives in their back alley euthanasia While some die too soon because they are poor uneducated or hard to manage others are overtreated and their deaths delayed because doctors and hospitals want to increase their income or fear prosecution if they help a patient die Barbara Logue describes these and many other hazards inherent in our present long term care system noting that all too often the system causes suffering instead of alleviating it After assessing the alternatives she urges that we must make compassionate death control as available as birth control We must regulate and monitor it like any other medical procedure taking steps to minimize the risks while maximizing the benefits

Families Susan K Pfeifer, Marvin B Sussman, 2014-06-17 This special volume is devoted to the synthesis and review of theoretical and conceptual approaches associated with familial and non familial connections across the life span An important book as society returns to the family it compares and contrasts different disciplinary perspectives associated with intergenerational relationships Because intergenerational relationships have been the focus of research in many disciplines various perspectives have emerged about kin and non kin connections Renewed interest in families and familial connections is due largely to events and situations occurring in complex modernized societies which place the intergenerational nexus on center stage The leading researchers represented in this outstanding book provide rare opportunity for the scholarly comparison of the various perspectives in the broader spectrum of family relations Families Intergenerational and Generational Connecting is a significant addition to the body of research on family connections The three major areas of generational and intergenerational connections include theoretical and conceptual perspectives connections within the family and connections outside the family As the use of families as support networks for individual members increases this timely book will be an invaluable aid to educators students and researchers concerned about families and familial and non familial relationships Counselors and therapists will value this enlightening book with its diverse theoretical and conceptual perspectives on kinship intergenerational solidarity and relations social supports and cross national perspectives on family connections
