The Origins of Transmedia Storytelling in Early Twentieth Century Adaptation Alexis Weedon, 2021-06-18 This book explores the significance of professional writers and their role in developing

British storytelling in the 1920s and 1930s and their influence on the poetics of today's transmedia storytelling. Modern techniques can be traced back to the early twentieth century when film, radio, and television provided professional writers with new formats and revenue streams for their fiction. The book explores the contribution of four British authors, household names in their day who adapted work for film, television, and radio. Although celebrities between the wars, Clemence Dane, G. B. Stern, Hugh Walpole, and A. E. W. Mason have fallen from view. The popular playwright Dane, witty novelist Stern, and raconteur Walpole have been marginalised for being German, Jewish, female, or gay, and Mason's contribution to film has been overlooked also. It argues that these and other vocational authors should be reassessed for their contribution to new media forms of storytelling. The book makes a significant contribution in the fields of media studies, adaptation studies, and the literary middlebrow.

The Power of Storytelling Mary Anne Phemister, 2025-08-15 Succinct and engaging portraits of nine British women authors who saw their own writing, whether it was stories for children, political tracts, or journalism, as a tool for the moral education of the masses. Between 1760 and 1860, a period of threatening moral decline, these women, many of them overlooked by contemporary literary scholars, were vital to England's progress in terms of character education and social reform. Slavery is abolished, freedom of the press remains strong, and the British monarchy is still beloved today. Far from being marginal figures, the women highlighted in The Power of Storytelling were crucial participants during a complex, fraught historical moment that still resonates with us today.
