During the history of Britain s electric tramcar fleets many thousands were manufactured of which the vast majority saw out their operational life with a single owner However for several hundred there was to be a second if not in certain cases a third career with a new operator Almost from the dawn of the electric era in the late 19th century tramcars were loaned or bought and sold between operators The reasons for this were multifarious Sometimes the aspirations of the original owners for traffic proved wildly optimistic and the fleet was downsized to reflect better the actual passenger levels War was a further cause as operators sought to strengthen their fleets to cater for unexpectedly high level of demand or to replace trams destroyed by enemy action For other operators modernization represented an opportunity to sell older cars while certainly from the 1930s a number of operators such as Aberdeen Leeds and Sunderland took advantage of the demise of tramways elsewhere to supplement their fleet with trams that were being withdrawn but which still had many years of useful operational life in them The process was to continue right through to the mid 1950s when Glasgow took advantage of the demise of the once extensive Liverpool system to purchase a number of the streamlined bogie bogie cars that were built in the late 1930s In this book the author provides a pictorial history with detailed captions to the many electric trams that were to operate with more than one tramway during the period up to the closure of the closure of the Glasgow system in 1962

Telematics and Work J.H. Erik Andriesson, Robert A. Roe, 2013-05-24 This volume is part of a publication series emerging from an international interdisciplinary study group on New Technologies and Work NeTWork NeTWork is sponsored by the Werner Reimers Foundation Bad Homburg Germany and the Maison des Sciences de l Homme Paris The NeTWork study group has set itself the task of intellectually penetrating various problem domains posed by the introduction and spread of new technologies in work settings This problem focus requires interdisciplinary co operation The usual mode of operating is to identify an important problem within the NeTWork scope to attempt to prestructure it and then to invite original contributions from European researchers or research teams actively involved in relevant analytic or developmental work A specific workshop serves to cross fertilize the different approaches and to help to integrate more fully the individual contributions The concept of telematics refers to the integration of computer telecommunication and information technologies It alludes to the opportunities presented by the technical means to communicate and transfer data over large distances by intelligent equipment Teleshopping teleconferencing teleworking and telebanking are but a few examples of a development which influences both public and private environments Both households and workplaces are likely to be thoroughly changed by telematics This publication emphasises the application of telematics in working environments The central questions of the book are How will the present and future development of telematics effect the nature and organization of work and under which conditions will this development be optimal From the various contributions it is clear that telematics is not a single direct cause or determinant of particular changes in work and organization The development and application of telematics depend on decision making of actors at a political scene both outside and inside the work organizations The effects of the use of these applications appear to be co determined by many other factors In fact the technology interacts with political economic and social factors in a complex process that shapes new organizational forms and work relationships

Understanding Death as Life's Paradox Brayton Polka, 2019-04-30 This book focuses on death as life's paradox in order to test to put on trial what it means for us human beings to exist No one of us chooses to be born Yet having been born we must choose to have been born to live to exist To exist is to choose to exist To choose to exist is to live with our choices This text argues that death is the limit of life that we can live freely and lovingly at once justly and compassionately solely within the limit of death It shows that we can develop a comprehensive conception of life and also of death solely insofar as we learn to overcome the dualistic opposition between philosophy and theology that continues today to falsify our understanding of not only the secular but also the sacred
