Secondary Breadwinners Israeli Women In The Labor Force:

Secondary Breadwinners Vered Kraus, 2002-05-30 The first comprehensive account of women's participation in the Israeli labor force Kraus's book analyzes the trends in the status of women in paid employment since the 1960s Covering all aspects of labor force participation she fully integrates and tracks over time the many facets of social stratification by gender in Israeli society Though founded as an egalitarian society Kraus's research clearly shows that traditional attitudes toward women in the Israeli workplace have prevailed over those more progressive Consequently the widely held impression that the status of women in Israel differs from that of their counterparts in other liberal democratic societies is shown to be more myth than reality Though focusing on Israel comparisons are made with other modern industrial societies adding to the evidence accumulating on the changing trends in the status of women in the labor force that will interest scholars and students concerned as to how gender intersects with matters of political economy Furthermore the unique spectrum of communities in Israel ranging from traditional Muslim Arab Palestinians through Christian Arab Palestinians and Jews of African American origin through to the more modernized Jews of European American origin enables simultaneous examinations of the various stages of women's integration in the labor force Paths to Middle-Class Mobility Among

Schneider, 2019-02-18 In this book Devorah Kalekin Fishman and Karlheinz Schneider analyze how the relationship between the traditional and the modern is unfolding in a particular milieu by centering on the Haredi women in Israel who become part of the national rather than the community work force The book is based on analyses of interviews with people in the Haredi world The authors goal is to attain an understanding of what women's work means to the women to their families and to the Haredi community as a whole by placing women's self presentations in the context of sociological literatures relating to the sociology of religion and the sociology of gender The focal issue is the question of how traditionalism fares when the legitimator monitor of tradition in the home encounters the constraints of modernity through her studies and her work

Yonay, 2018-03-22 Palestinian women have slowly become active in the formal labor market in Israel In this book Vered Kraus and Yuval Yonay describe and analyse the labor experience of these Palestinian women and explain why Palestinian and Jewish women have different rates and outcomes in the labor market Challenging popular views that ascribe these differences to Arab culture and Islam they instead find that it is state policies and widespread discrimination that hinder Palestinian women's participation and success By including the various Palestinian sub groups Muslims Bedouins Druze Christians non citizen residents of Jerusalem this book shows how the specific life circumstances of the women from these subgroups affect their employment and achievements The book thus enriches the acute discussion on the labour market experiences of Muslim and Arab women in the Middle East and North Africa and in advanced industrialized societies Socioeconomic Inequality in Israel Nabil Khattab, Sami Miaari, Haya Stier, 2016-04-29 This volume addresses different aspects and areas of inequality in Israel a

Contesting the Monolith Priya Singh, 2025-10-24 The book challenges the notion that Israel is a homogeneous state whether in theory or in practice It offers a detailed and critical intersectional analysis of nationalism ethnicity gender and marginality in Israeli society revealing how these forces converge to produce multiple as well as fused identities within a complex social fabric Examining the ruptures and fault lines that shape a multi layered society the study contends that Israel's exceptionality lies not in its self proclaimed Jewish and democratic character but in its resort to exceptional legal and coercive measures to mask internal diversity By obscuring this heterogeneous reality the state cultivates an illusion of a monolithic and uniform Israeli identity The analysis presents a society far more fragmented and stratified than official narratives suggest offering readers an understanding of how intersecting structures of identity and power operate in the Israeli context and how social and political institutions respond to and regulate internal difference This book will be of interest to academic researchers postgraduate and doctoral students and policymakers engaged with questions of nationalism marginality identity and Middle Eastern politics particularly within the disciplines of political science sociology Middle Eastern studies and gender studies
