Margate In Old Photographs A Second Selection A Second Selection Britain In Old Photographs:

The Architecture of Pleasure Josephine Kane, 2016-03-16 The amusement parks which first appeared in England at the turn of the twentieth century represent a startlingly novel and complex phenomenon combining fantasy architecture new technology ersatz danger spectacle and consumption in a new mass experience Though drawing on a diverse range of existing leisure practices the particular entertainment formula they offered marked a radical departure in terms of visual experiential and cultural meanings The huge socially mixed crowds that flocked to the new parks did so purely in the pursuit of pleasure which the amusement parks commodified in exhilarating new guises Between 1906 and 1939 nearly 40 major amusement parks operated across Britain By the outbreak of the Second World War millions of people visited these sites each year The amusement park had become a defining element in the architectural psychological pleasurescape of Britain This book considers the relationship between popular modernity pleasure and the amusement park landscape in Britain from 1900 1939 It argues that the amusement parks were understood as a new and distinct expression of modern times which redefined the concept of public pleasure for mass audiences Focusing on three sites Blackpool Pleasure Beach Dreamland in Margate and Southend s Kursaal the book contextualises their development with references to the wider amusement park world The meanings of these sites are explored through a detailed examination of the spatial and architectural form taken by rides and other buildings The rollercoaster a defining symbol of the amusement park is given particular focus as is the extent to which discourses of class gender and national identity were expressed through the design of these parks

Sun, Fun, and Crowds Steven Braggs, Diane Harris, 2000 The inter war period saw the annual holiday become part of the lives of large numbers of people in Britain for the first time In the Edwardian age it had been a privilege enjoyed by the few but by the end of the 1930s 15 million people were going away to the coast for a week or two This book explores all the facets of the seaside holiday where people went and why how they got there where they stayed and what they did We take in the first holiday camps which opened in the 30s as well as some wonderful modern hotels that were the epitome of sophistication and style We examine the architecture of pleasure in the form of cinemas piers lidos and pavilions This intriguing account is richly illustrated throughout with a mixture of contemporary photographs and postcards publicity material posters and modern images
