Governing Future Technologies Mario Kaiser, Monika Kurath, Sabine Maasen, Christoph Rehmann-Sutter, 2009-10-29

Nanotechnology has been the subject of extensive assessment hype unlike any previous field of research and development. A multiplicity of stakeholders have started to analyze the implications of nanotechnology. Technology assessment institutions around the world, non-governmental organizations, think tanks, re-insurance companies and academics from science and technology studies and applied ethics have turned their attention to this growing field's implications. In the course of these assessment efforts, a social phenomenon has emerged, a phenomenon the editors define as assessment regime. Despite the variety of organizations, methods and actors involved in the evaluation and regulation of emerging nanotechnologies, the assessment activities comply with an overarching scientific and political imperative: Innovations are only welcome if they are assessed against the criteria of safety, sustainability, desirability and acceptability. So far, such deliberations and reflections have played only a subordinate role. This book argues that with the rise of the nanotechnology assessment regime, however, things have changed dramatically. Situated at the crossroads of democratizing science and technology, good governance and the quest for sustainable innovations, the assessment regime has become constitutive for technological development. The contributions in this book explore and critically analyse nanotechnology's assessment regime. To what extent is it constitutive for technology in general, for nanotechnology in particular? What social conditions render the regime a phenomenon sui generis? And what are its implications for science and society? Development of Technical Education in Sind, 1986

Oman Diana Darke, 2013 Oman is not merely a desert. While it has the classic sand seas, Wahiba Sands, home to the nomadic Bedouin and their camels, this sultanate also boasts lush monsoon-soaked valleys near Salalah, mountain villages surrounded by green terraced fields of fruit trees and rose bushes, and the reef-fringed Daymaniyat Islands. With such a varied wilderness, there is huge scope for adventure. Tourism has developed over the last few years, and there is an increased emphasis on high-end visitors with new luxury spas in hotels like The Chedi, The Wave and the Four Seasons in Muscat, and the new Marriott in Salalah. Large international cruise ships now call for a night or two at Muttrah, Muscat harbour, and at Salalah in the south. Eco-awareness is on the rise, with many bigger hotels using waste water for garden irrigation and eco-luxe tents are growing in popularity for desert and mountain adventure tours. The first boutique hotels are opening for small-scale tourism to the uninhabited historic villages, particularly in the mountains where the high altitude gives cooler climates and greener landscapes with village terracing for agriculture. Oman is increasingly perceived as a high-end cultural destination. The new Opera House has opened, directly supported by the Sultan, with top-notch international performers like Plácido Domingo. New sections in this edition include advice on property buying, since Omani law changed to allow expatriates to buy, explaining the rules and regulations. There is also a detailed overview of language schools teaching Arabic, not found in other guides. With advice on cultural etiquette, basic Arabic phrases and political history, as well as full practical information on where to stay and eat and what to see and do this fully updated edition remains the essential guide for travellers looking to discover the real Oman

Urban Centres in Asia and Latin America Simone Sandholz, 2016-09-20 This book presents an overview of the challenges that cities in Latin America and Asia are facing regarding the preservation of their tangible and intangible heritage It argues that urban heritage has a value that transcends the mere object's value constituting a crucial source of identity for urban inhabitants The same is true for the urban intangible values and practices that are often associated with places or buildings The empirical research is based on case studies of Kathmandu in Nepal Yogyakarta in Indonesia and Recife in Brazil three cities that still comprise core areas with a high percentage of historic fabric and distinctive cultural expressions The comparative study of the three areas reveals the similarities and differences of urban conservation policies past and present upgrading strategies in the core areas and the importance of tangible and intangible heritage All three cities demonstrate that urban heritage habits and beliefs are still of importance to the population While there are significant differences in the kind and level of protection the respective legal system provides partly uncontrolled urban dynamics pose a threat to all of them The text is based on a PhD thesis submitted to the Institute of Geography University of Innsbruck Austria
