Local Matters Christopher Waldrep, Donald G. Nieman, 2001 Much of the current reassessment of race culture and criminal justice in the nineteenth century South has been based on intensive community studies Drawing on previously untapped sources the nine original papers collected here represent some of the best new work on how racial justice can be shaped by the particulars of time and place Although each essay is anchored in the local several important larger themes emerge across the volume such as the importance of personality and place the movement of former slaves from the capriciousness of plantation justice to the theoretically more evenhanded processes of the courts and the increased presence of government in daily aspects of American life Local Matters cites a wide range of examples to support these themes One essay considers the case of a quasi free slave in Natchez Mississippi himself a slaveowner who was reined in by his master through the courts while another shows how federal aims were subverted during trials held in the aftermath of the 1876 race riots in Ellenton South Carolina Other topics covered include the fear of black criminality as a motivation of Klan activity the career of Thomas Ruffin slaveowner and North Carolina Supreme Court Justice blacks and the ballot in Washington County Texas the overturned murder conviction of a North Carolina slave who had killed a white man the formation of a powerful white bloc in Vicksburg Mississippi agitation by black and white North Carolina women for greater protections from abusive white male elites and slaves crime and the common law in New Orleans Together these studies offer new insights into the nature of law and the fate of due process at different stages of a highly racialized society
