

The background of the book cover is a sepia-toned photograph of a woman walking away from the viewer down a long, straight street. She is wearing a bright red coat and a dark beret, carrying a black bag. The street is paved with cobblestones and is flanked by brick buildings. A street lamp stands on the right side of the path. The atmosphere is misty or foggy, with the street leading towards a distant horizon.

The Supremacist Syndrome Marsh, Peter, 2021-03-10 A careful and compelling examination of human supremacism underlies ideologies such as anti-Semitism genocide racism misogyny and cruelty to animals Proponents of human exceptionalism claim that only humans possess certain morally significant capacities and as a result are entitled to be treated better than members of all other species In the last fifty years scientists have discovered how these capacities are shared by other species which only raises the questions of how and why we evade responsibility for inhumane behavior not only to animals but to one another To answer these questions independent scholar Peter Marsh examines in depth three different ideologies ethnonationalist supremacism the Holocaust in Hungary racial supremacism the rule of King Leopold II of Belgium in the Congo and gender based supremacism men's treatment of women in Victorian and Edwardian England He shows how supremacists applied mechanisms of moral disengagement to legitimize and evade personal responsibility for oppressing and exploiting members of a less powerful group Marsh then considers whether these different types of supremacism have common features and compares them to the way we treat animals to examine whether that too causes unjustified harm to members of a weaker group and is wrong in the same way racism sexism and other supremacist ideologies are Finally he asks the what we can do to overcome human supremacism and other supremacist ideologies providing practical examples of cross cultural collaboration humane education veganism and extending concepts of identity beyond borders of culture race and nation as Europeans have done by establishing the European Union
