Sensing the Self Sheila M. Reindl, 2001 Hearing about the destructive compulsion of bulimia nervosa outsiders may wonder How could you ever start Those suffering from the eating disorder ask themselves in despair How can I ever stop How do you break the cycle of bingeing vomiting laxative abuse and shame While many books describe the descent into eating disorders and the resulting emotional and physical damage this book describes recovery Psychologist Sheila Reindl has listened intently to women s accounts of recovering Reindl argues compellingly that people with bulimia nervosa avoid turning their attention inward to consult their needs desires feelings and aggressive strivings because to do so is to encounter an annihilating sense of shame Disconnected from internal sensed experience bulimic women rely upon external gauges to guide their choices To recover bulimic women need to develop a sense of self to attune to their physical psychic and social self experience They also need to learn that one s neediness desire pain and aggression are not sources of shame to be kept hidden but essential aspects of humanity necessary for zestful life The young women with whom Reindl speaks describe with great feeling their efforts to know and trust their own experience Perceptive lucid and above all humane this book will be welcomed not only by professionals but by people who struggle with an eating disorder and by those who love them Mindfulness and Yoga for Self-Regulation Catherine P.
