Marketing Canada's Energy A Strategy For Security In Oil And Gas:

Marketing Canada's Energy Ian McDougall, 1983-01-01 Written in the early 1980s author I A McDougall shows that as an import dependent country Canada was ill prepared for possible disruptions in its oil supply McDougall envisioned a future in which superpower rivalry over dwindling world reserves coupled with rationing of supply by OPEC members and volatility in the Persian Gulf would make Canada's dependence on foreign oil increasingly precarious He asserted that the contemporary Liberal government's National Energy Program was a useful first step in promoting an independent energy strategy Marketing Canada's Energy is a passionate addition to the lively debate over Canada's independence during the 1980s

Marketing Canada's Energy Ian McDougall, 1983 From the back cover Canada is heading for a crunch in its energy supply Author I A McDougall shows that for an import dependent country Canada is ill prepared for disruptions in its oil supply He finds that the International Energy Agency and the National Energy Board cannot protect Canada's energy security since control over oil imports is largely in the hands of international oil companies basing their decisions on corporate advantage Moreover the domestic production situation is jeopardized by the alienation of the oil producing provinces lowered energy investment expectations and a jumble of fiscal and tax expenditures McDougall asserts that the National Energy Program was a first step to forming an energy strategy independent of the major foreign owned oil companies But the creation of a National Energy Marketing Commission with broad regulatory and purchasing powers is needed to bring about a comprehensive energy management scheme

The Journal of Canadian Petroleum Technology, 1983 Understanding New Security Threats Michel Gueldry, Gigi Gokcek, Lui Hebron, 2019-02-21 This textbook examines non traditional forms of security and expands the notion of security to include non state actors and non human actors Proposing an expansive view of non traditional forms of security that go beyond traditionally recognized issues of threats to state and national territory this new textbook rests on the following premises traditional state centered threats such as nuclear proliferation and espionage remain a concern old and new threats combine and create interlocking puzzles a feature of wicked problems and wicked messes because of the global erosion of borders new developments of unconventional insecurity interact in ways that frustrate traditional conceptual definitions conceptual maps and national policies unconventional security challenges which have traditionally been seen as low politics or soft issues are now being recognized as hard security challenges in the twenty first century many of the so called new threats detailed here are in fact very old diseases gender violence food insecurity under development and crime are all traditional security threats but deeply modified today by globalization The chapters offer local and global examples and engage with various theoretical approaches to help readers see the bigger picture Solutions are also suggested to these problems Each chapter contains discussion questions to help readers understand the key points and facilitate class discussion This book will be of great interest to students of international security studies human security global politics and international relations Energy and Security Jan H.

Kalicki, David L.
