

The Giant Moa

On the South Island of New Zealand, there once lived an amazing bird called the giant moa. These huge birds were about two meters tall. This makes them the tallest bird ever known. People think the moa weighed up to 249 kg—that's about three times heavier than a human! The moa were herbivores, so they ate plant stems, berries, and leaves from the forest and grasslands. They also swallowed stones to help them eat their food.

Sadly, when humans arrived on the island, they hunted and killed many of the adult moa. They also brought dogs with them that killed the young chicks. This means the moa is now extinct. We can only see and learn about them at museums.

A. Read and complete.
