Reading Comprehension Education in Fifteen Countries Alan C. Purves, Robert Ladd Thorndike, 1973 Reading

Comprehension Education in Fifteen Countries Robert Ladd Thorndike, 1973 Reading Comprehension Difficulties Cesare Cornoldi, Jane V. Oakhill, 2013-04-03 Recognizing the characteristics of children with learning disabilities and deciding how to help them is a problem faced by schools all over the world. Although some disorders are fairly easily recognizable e.g. mental retardation or very specific to single components of performance and quite rare e.g. developmental dyscalculia, schools must consider much larger populations of children with learning difficulties who cannot always be readily classified. These children present high level learning difficulties that affect their performance on a variety of school tasks but the underlying problem is often their difficulty in understanding written text. In many instances, despite good intellectual abilities and a superficial ability to cope with written texts and to use language appropriately, some children do not seem to grasp the most important elements or cannot find the pieces of information they are looking for. Sometimes these difficulties are not immediately detected by the teacher in the early school years. They may be hidden because the most obvious early indicators of reading progress in the teacher's eyes do not involve comprehension of written texts or because the first texts a child encounters are quite simple and reflect only the difficulty level of the oral messages, sentences, short stories etc. with which the child is already familiar. However, as years go by and texts get more complex, comprehension difficulties will become increasingly apparent and increasingly detrimental to effective school learning. In turn, studying, assimilating new information and many other situations requiring text comprehension from problem solving to reasoning with linguistic contents could be affected. Problems with decoding, dyslexia and language disorders have attracted more interest from researchers than have specific comprehension problems and have occupied more room in specialized journals. Normal reading comprehension has also been a favorite with researchers. However, scarce interest has been paid to subjects who have comprehension difficulties. This book is an attempt to remedy this situation. In so doing, this volume answers the following questions: Does a reading comprehension problem exist in schools? How important and widespread is the problem? Is the problem specific? How can a reading comprehension difficulty be defined and identified? Does the syndrome have a single pattern or can different subtypes be identified? What are the main characteristics associated with a reading comprehension difficulty? When can other well identified problems add to our understanding of reading comprehension difficulties? Which educational strategies are effective in preventing and treating reading comprehension difficulties? What supplementary information can we get from an international perspective? Handbook of Research on Reading Comprehension, Second Edition Susan E. Israel, 2017-01-02 This edition provides a transformative snapshot of reading comprehension as a field of study at a seminal moment. It maintains the same high level of standards with respect to 1) historical perspectives useful for laying the foundation of study on reading comprehension, 2) theoretical perspectives that allow the reader to consider different views on how specific areas have evolved since the first edition 3 excellent chapters on various elements of reading comprehension including major research studies in assessment cultural impacts of reading comprehension issues affecting English language learners and consideration of international populations and 4 identification of future research needs to help raise important questions and stimulate possible hypotheses for future research

Transnational Policy Flows in European Education Andreas Nordin, Daniel Sundberg, 2014-05-12 International comparisons of educational achievements have come to play a crucial role in understanding the educational field today This book provides an in depth analysis of the development of international large scale assessments The lives and achievements of transnational educational experts who paved the way for these assessments are discussed as well as the rise of institutions specialising in the making and managing of educational statistics such as the International Association for the Evaluation of Educational Achievements IEA and the Programme for International Student Assessment PISA supported by the Organisation for Economic Cooperation and Development OECD Emerging transnational policy spaces and their effect on national education policy are also problematised using the concept of Europeanisation as a theoretical reference By bringing together historical and contemporary comparisons using different methodological approaches the goal of this book is to contribute to a widened understanding of educational policy making as an open ended and complex process that cannot be reduced to a rational process of linear implementation or a deduction of world models of education Instead the result of this book shows that transnational policy flows in many directions in European education today and is being negotiated translated interpreted or even contested when recontextualised in different national and or local arenas This book addresses crucial questions on how the landscape and its borders of educational knowledge and policy making have changed over time and place and how the map is currently redrawn in the contemporary globalised educational context It provides important navigational knowledge for students teachers and researchers as well as policy makers at different levels
