

5 STAGES OF RECOVERY

1

RECOVERY CONTEMPLATION (PRE-ABSTINENCE)

During this stage the individual acknowledges that there is a problem and begins to consider reaching out for help to curb the addiction. This stage of the recovery process can go on for some time with the individual wavering between the pre-contemplation, contemplation and preparation stages of change.

2

DETOX AND EARLY ABSTINENCE (0 TO 2-3 MONTHS)

During this stage the individual actually stops using their drug of choice. This stage can be excruciating for many and may require medical supervision for the first week to ten days. This stage is characterized by the body's detoxification of mind and mood altering substances. It is this stage where the body begins to heal itself and return to homeostasis.

3

TREATMENT AND EARLY RECOVERY (2-3 MO TO 1 YR)

This is the core of any recovery program however it should not begin too early. This stage typically begins with residential treatment or another intensive therapy such as one-on-one counseling. Intensive self-examination combined with clinical support helps the addict identify and expose the underlying issues that manifested into their addiction.

4

ACTIVE RECOVERY & MAINTENANCE (1 TO 5 YEARS)

The focus of this stage is the incorporation of everything learnt into one's daily life. The individual has completed extensive work on themselves and begun a complete transformation of their lives (mind, body and spirit) including new tools to cope and to guard against relapse.

5

ADVANCED RECOVERY (5 YEARS AND BEYOND)

With at least 5 years of clean time, the individual's program has evolved into a living and almost subconscious one. The tools that they have learnt become second nature and get used every day without effort. The individual is very comfortable in their new identity and purposefully lives a wholehearted and authentic life.
