Haydn's Sunrise, Beethoven's Shadow Deirdre Loughridge, 2016-09-06 The years between roughly 1760 and 1810, a period stretching from the rise of Joseph Haydn's career to the height of Ludwig van Beethoven's, are often viewed as a golden age for musical culture when audiences started to revel in the sounds of the concert hall. But the latter half of the eighteenth century also saw proliferating optical technologies including magnifying instruments, magic lanterns, peepshows, and shadow plays that offered new performance tools, fostered musical innovation, and shaped the very idea of pure music. Haydn's Sunrise, Beethoven's Shadow is a fascinating exploration of the early romantic blending of sight and sound as encountered in popular science, street entertainments, opera, and music criticism. Deirdre Loughridge reveals that allusions in musical writings to optical technologies reflect their spread from fairgrounds and laboratories into public consciousness and a range of discourses, including that of music. She demonstrates how concrete points of intersection, composers' treatments of telescopes and peepshows in opera, for instance, or a shadow play performance of a ballad, could then fuel new modes of listening that aimed to extend the senses. An illuminating look at romantic musical practices and aesthetics, this book yields surprising relations between the past and present and offers insight into our own contemporary audiovisual culture.

The Shadow Teller's Plays Bill Reed, 2017-12-13 In a volume containing 14 original plays, including three shadow play adaptations of Gogol, Morton and Runyon classics, the author resurrects a sadly neglected theatre genre, the shadow play, combining traditional shadow techniques with normal acting to create full-bodied mainstream plays. These plays do not use shadow puppetry type techniques that need people contorting themselves, however wonderfully, to form shapes, but rather normal acting prowess.

together and usual props of mainstream theatre with the new back lighting technologies The result is plays which are realistic and yet overlain with the imaginative fantasies that figure theatre can bring in a fallow area lying between mime and conventional stage plays a rediscovered form of a modern staging that crosses between live and shadow effect whether in workshopping for all ages and group size or for professional productions Shadow plays comprise the theatre landscape for live actors re skilled to jump from behind the screen one dimensional acting to front of the screen three dimensional acting at any moment of the play They allow a new and exciting way of presenting the combination of the real and the surreal in ways that offer broadened audience and student experiences under the master of storytelling of a shadow teller together with the master of pacing of a mobile light spotter
