Shakespeare and the Staging of English History Janette Dillon, 2012-04-05 OXFORD SHAKESPEARE TOPICS General Editors Peter Holland and Stanley Wells Oxford Shakespeare Topics provide students and teachers with short books on important aspects of Shakespeare criticism and scholarship Each book is written by an authority in its field and combines accessible style with original discussion of its subject This new study of Shakespeare's English history plays looks at the plays through the lens of early modern staging focusing on the recurrence of particular stage pictures and units of action and seeking to show how these units function in particular and characteristic ways within the history plays Through close analysis of stage practice and stage picture the book builds a profile of the kinds of writing and staging that characterise a Shakespearean history play and that differentiate one history play from another The first part of the book concentrates primarily on the stage looking at the single picture or tableau the use of presenters or choric figures and the creation of horizontally and vertically divided stage pictures Later chapters focus more on the body on how bodies move gesture occupy space and handle objects in particular kinds of scenes The book concludes by analysing the highly developed use of one crucial stage property the chair of state in Shakespeare's last history play Henry VIII

Students of Shakespeare often express anxiety about how to read a play as a performance text rather than a non-dramatic literary text This book aims to dispel that anxiety It offers readers a way of making sense of plays by looking closely at what happens on stage and breaks down scenes into shorter units so that the building blocks of Shakespeare's historical dramaturgy become visible By studying the unit of action how it looks and how that look resembles or differs from the look of other units of action readers will become familiar with a way of reading that may be applied to other plays both Shakespearean and non-Shakespearean
