of the different industries is described in the accompanying text by Anthony Burton They have travelled the country from the Spey valley in Scotland where they recorded the workers in a traditional distillery and a cooperage to Cornwall and the studio of a specialist pub sign painter They have gone underground with a Free Miner of the Forest of Dean and seen molten metal being poured to create majestic church bells The book delights in the variety and individuality of the different industries For both author and photographer it has been a revelation to see some of these processes at work to watch a craftsman take a strip of silver and work it by hand into a spoon or to find clocks being made in a workshop that looks as if it has scarcely changed for a hundred years Now readers have the opportunity to share these experiences and delight in the discovery of these magnificent survivors      Work ,1897      Library of Congress Subject Headings ,2009      A General History of Horology Anthony Turner,James Nye,Jonathan Betts,2022-07-28 A General History of Horology describes instruments used for the finding and measurement of time from Antiquity to the 21st century In geographical scope it ranges from East Asia to the Americas The instruments described are set in their technical and social contexts and there is also discussion of the literature the historiography and the collecting of the subject The book features the use of case studies to represent larger topics that cannot be completely covered in a single book The international body of authors have endeavoured to offer a fully world wide survey accessible to students historians collectors and the general reader based on a firm understanding of the technical basis of the subject At the same time as the work offers a synthesis of current knowledge of the subject it also incorporates the results of some fundamental new and original research      Astronomical observations made of the National Observatory Washington National Observatory (Washington, DC),1851
