

Marriage Family Relations

Sociology focuses on social institutions looking at society on a micro scale

Throughout this course we should focus on the concept of institutions and demographics and social power(power is just how power is experience through people through institutions and impact us)

Author talks about American in the concept of geology where does your family come from?

Understanding different definitions of family understanding the very basic sociological theorist. Consequences theories there are conflict theories would have historical foundation

Concise theory there is a conflict theory which has historical foundation and has problems within these groups

Feminist theory – how has family Siri really influenced our perspectives on family and the roles within our family

EXCHANGE THEORY DEFINING – THAT ARE SEEN THE INDIVIDUAL GROUPS WITH DIFFERENT RESOLUTIONS STRENGTHS AND WEAKNESSES ENTERING INTO MULTIPLE RELATIONSHIPS TO MAXIMIZE THEIR OWN GAINS.

Symbolic interaction – which really looks at the micro and human interactions on a daily basis and how that contribute to upholding these larger institutions and social construct in our society.

24 talked about the difference in sociological mythological that researchers have to do in order to study family page 30- big data would be for example just all this Internet data that being gathered upon each person all the things that you have looked up on Google all the things that you have posted on social media all the ads that you have looked at all purchased items

The sociological imagination?

Handbook of Marriage and the Family Marvin B. Sussman, Suzanne K. Steinmetz, Gary W. Peterson, 2013-06-29 To know where we are going as scholars educators and practitioners in the field of marriage and family life we first need to know where we have been A perusal of early texts on marriage and family life provides some thought provoking insights into the accuracy of the saying what goes around comes around It is interesting to note who has been considered to be in a position to provide information on marriage and family life Included in the eclectic collection of texts we reviewed were ministers whose focus was on spirituality doctors who emphasized medical aspects of child and adult health and public health professionals and home economists concerned with fighting disease who emphasized cleanliness order fighting germs and eliminating rodents and insects There are also philosophers who drew from ancient texts when discussing family life and a count who assembled a group of German intellectual elites to address various topics An insightful essay of this type is by Marta Karlweis 1926 in which she notes There is no other fetish that society holds to so firmly as the conception woman with all its usual associations of infantilism and dependence The child requires protection is a minor and consequently a serf but above all it possesses no spiritual existence Neither doctorates or other distinctions nor the right to vote have as yet been able to dispel this sweet idea of the childishness of woman which man cherishes p

Continuity and Change in Family Relations Rand D. Conger, Frederick O. Lorenz, K.A.S. Effects of Alevi-Sunni Marriages on Children's Religious Education and Family Relations Dr. Fatma Kurttekin, 2024-12-31 In this study the views of parents in Alevi Sunni marriages on the phenomenon of religion and their children's religious education are examined While there has been a growing body of research on the role and significance of religion in Alevi Sunni families limited attention has been paid to their attitudes towards their children's religious education particularly within the context of cross religious marriages Based on this this study aims to fill this research gap by examining the perspectives of parents in Alevi Sunni marriages on their children's religious education and family dynamics using qualitative methods to provide in depth insights Ten families living in Sivas Ankara and Tunceli who were contacted through snowball and purposive sampling participated in the study in which qualitative research techniques were used The data used in the study were collected through questionnaires and semi structured interview forms The data was analyzed with the content analysis. It was determined that the Alevi-Sunni difference did not have a significant impact on the participants' religious attitudes or their children's religious education. Almost all parents stated that they wanted their children to choose their own path by acquiring experience and knowledge about both religious interpretations and understandings. The study identified two primary areas of difficulty in Alevi-Sunni families: familial opposition to the participants' decision to marry and conflicts surrounding the children's religious education. These tensions may stem from societal pressures to conform to sectarian norms and the fear of losing religious identity through cross-mixed intrafaith marriages. Such pressures highlight the need for open dialogue and acceptance within families, which many participants reported as key to resolving conflicts. The provision of religious education in the family and the religious identity of children have been discussed in a separate study. Therefore, in this study, participants' views on compulsory religious education activities, which are also a subject of debate in society, were evaluated. In parallel with the findings in the literature, the participants' opinions were grouped into three categories: namely, abolishing the courses, making the courses optional, and improving the courses along with preserving their compulsory status. Following the interviews, it was seen that the participants could have arguments mostly due to external factors and that their own religious understanding did not have any impact on family life, religious attitudes, or child rearing. Attention was drawn to the need for freedom from prejudices, acceptance of the other as he/she is, honesty, trust, and a communicative environment of dialogue in order to reduce the tension in these two areas.
