of newer generation 1.5 and second generation Korean New Zealander youth who grew up in New Zealand after the 1990s. Based on in depth interviews it shows how many of them initially sought to assimilate into the dominant culture but later experienced a process of re ethnicization rediscovering their Korean heritage during adolescence and early adulthood. Chapters explore key themes such as cultural adaptation ethnic identity racism co ethnic friendships and the role of digital media and the Korean Wave in fostering re ethnicization. This book also situates these youth experiences within the broader contexts of New Zealand's multicultural policies its bicultural foundation multicultural frameworks and the global dynamics of diaspora and migration. Drawing on theories of segmented assimilation transnationalism and ethnic belonging this book offers new insights into how young migrants navigate dual identities and negotiate belonging in an increasingly diverse and complex society for scholars and students in migration studies sociology diaspora studies Asian studies and cultural studies.
