From microscope to kaleidoscope, 2008-01-01 What new understandings concerning children and significant others in their life worlds have become apparent because of the HIV AIDS pandemic This innovative book argues that new insights on education and psychosocial aspects surface when research in the realm of HIV

AIDS is viewed through a positive psychology lens. By converging in depth exploration and description, the book pinpoints vital persons supporting children's wellbeing and posits changed roles due to pandemic-related stressors. The significance of different education role players—children, teachers, caregivers, community members—is addressed in separate chapters using pioneering theory and empirical data that are integrated with dynamic case examples, visual data, and narratives. Ebersohn's edited book emphasises supportive persons and networks as buffers children access to mediate their coping when confronted by HIV/AIDS-related stressors. Throughout, the links between psychosocial support, changed roles and responsibilities, and resilience in the advent of adversity are clearly and thoughtfully demonstrated. A concluding chapter questions why and what happens to children's wellbeing when society fails to provide supportive networks and services.
