Research Conversations And Narrative A Critical Hermeneutic Orientation In Participatory Inquiry:

Research Conversations and Narrative Ellen A. Herda, 1999-09-30 The mainstays of research in an ontological tradition are brought to life in a critique of the received research paradigms in social sciences A critical hermeneutic perspective on language being understanding and action find expression and meaning in a research process grounded in the conversations and texts of researchers and participants The Essential Guide to Doing Research Zina O'Leary, 2004-06-09 The Essential Guide to Doing Research is a comprehensive practical and engaging guide to understanding and embarking upon social science research By adopting a clear and accessible approach Zina O'Leary encourages students to think about and engage with every aspect of the research process The book stresses that all good research should be seen as a process of constantly assessing one's work and making decisions about the best possible means for obtaining credible data and results

Community-Based Collaborative Action Research Carol Pavlish, Margaret Pharris, 2012 Community Based Collaborative Action Research A Nursing Approach provides a clear framework for an action research process to improve health outcomes and enact needed systems improvement The authors bring years of experience in community based collaborative action research CBCAR to demonstrate how nursing and other health care practitioners leaders and scholars can transform communities by identifying and addressing systemic and structural barriers to health and well being These communities can range from neighborhoods practice environments and villages to boardrooms and organizations Ideal for novice and experienced researchers including graduate and doctoral students involved in research initiatives and capstone projects this rigorous text is a non prescriptive step by step guide to enacting meaningful change that emerges primarily from within the community Rooted in social justice and advocacy and driven by theory and evidence based practice Community Based Collaborative Action Research A Nursing Approach is a unique and innovative resource Perspectives in Wellbeing: Narratives from the Field, 2025-04-24 Through this third volume of the series Perspectives in Wellbeing we offer students academics researchers and other stakeholders an opportunity to listen to people whose lived experiences ought to be closely considered in policy and practice The book invites readers to explore and identify issues affecting different populations social wellbeing enticing the reader to go beyond their comfort zones in space cultures ideas and ideology If you wish to deepen your understanding of the complex factors affecting the wellbeing of diverse groups and communities or aim to undertake research in these areas this book is a valuable resource for you Contributors are Roberta Attard Andrew Azzopardi Pat Bonello Daniel Brincat Anne Marie Callus Tea Cekic Marilyn Clark Joanne Cremona David De Bono Angele Deguara Ruth Falzon Marvin Formosa Vickie Gauci Natalie Kenely Greta Darmanin Kissaun Sue Vella Mary Grace Vella and Mark Vicars Ethnographic Inquiry and Lived Experience Wing-Chung Ho, 2019-01-15 Ho addresses two fundamental theoretical questions about how best to practice ethnographic inquiries to obtain qualitative experience near and shareable accounts of human living The first question is regarding the epistemology of ethnography Ho posits that writing is epistemologically prior to the researcher's fieldwork experience in the production of ethnographic knowledge. This stance is developed using the theories of hermeneutics put forward by Paul Ricoeur and Hans Georg Gadamer who both consider that once a text is produced its meaning is dissociated from the intention of the author. The second question is what is the putative object that the ethnographer writes about. Ho argues that lived experience (Erlebnis) offers such an ethnographic object. Since the lived experience that an ethnographer experiences during fieldwork cannot be studied directly, further theorizations of lived experience are necessary. Ho underscores both the non-discursivity and transcendence of lived experience in the lifeworld and the way power is clandestinely imbued in everyday life in shaping subjectivity and practice. This theorization brings together Alfred Schutz's lifeworld theory and Michel Foucault's power-knowledge nexus. The result is a general theory of experience that is pertinent for ethnographic inquiries. By addressing these two fundamental questions and offering novel angles from which to answer them, this book offers refreshed epistemological guidelines for conducting ethnographic research for scientific reasoning. More importantly, this book also provides a crucial knowledge base for comprehending the current epistemological debates inherent in the production of ethnographic knowledge and furthering discussions in the field.

The Essential Guide to Doing Your Research Project Zina O'Leary, 2009-11-25. This highly readable text guides the reader through each stage of their research project from getting started to writing up, with each chapter clearly explaining a step along the way. Based on the author's hugely popular The Essential Guide to Doing Research, this new book retains the warmth, wit, and grounded nature of the first while providing tools to help students through the ins and outs of their own projects and addressing the key questions students need to tackle. This is an inspiring book full of down-to-earth advice, illuminating figures and diagrams, and engaging real-life examples. With this book as your personal mentor, a successfully completed research project is well within reach.

The Handbook of Emergent Technologies in Social Research Sharlene Nagy Hesse-Biber, 2011-03-03. New technologies are breaking the boundaries of how social researchers practice their craft, and it has become clear these changes are dramatically altering research design from the way data is collected to what is considered data. Bringing together all the emerging social science research technologies in one place, The Handbook of Emergent Technologies in Social Research offers comprehensive and up-to-date thinking on emerging technologies and addresses their impact on research methods and, in turn, how new technologies lead to new research questions and areas of inquiry. The handbook is organized into five sections covering internet technologies, emergent data collection methods, audio-visual, mobile, and geospatial technologies, and technology's impact on studying social life in natural settings. After taking a look at emergent technologies from a broad social research context, many of the twenty-nine chapters provide a commentary on and summary of specific technologies like global surveys on the internet mobile phones data mining and remote sensing with a central focus on the most effective ways to use them Others discuss the ethical and moral implications especially issues of privacy and confidentiality and collaborations across disciplines and outside the academy The Handbook of Emergent Technologies in Social Research is indispensable for any social researcher looking to incorporate emerging technologies into their methods and practice

Refugee and Immigrant Students Florence E. McCarthy, Margaret H. Vickers, 2012-09-01 The focus of this book is on educational equity issues affecting immigrants and refugees around the world Chapters highlight educational approaches that build from experiential knowledge draw upon multiple languages consider group identity grapple with the complexities of inclusion address family concerns promote parental involvement involve liaison with community agencies and view cultural differences as educational strengths While the book does not shy away from exploring the more challenging aspects of the refugee and immigrant experience it avoids dwelling on victimology and rejects applying a deficit framework Rather it offers hope emphasizing the potential strengths of refugees including their cultural capital and survival skills The authors also make cogent suggestions for structural pedagogical and conceptual reform with targets ranging from individual teachers to educational systems to social economic political and cultural contexts

A Passion for the Possible Brian Treanor, Henry Isaac Venema, 2010 Paul Ricoeur s entire philosophical project narrates a passion for the possible expressed in the hope that in spite of death closure and sedimentation life is opened by superabundance by how the world gives us much more than is possible Ricoeur s philosophical anthropology is a phenomenology of human capacity which gives onto the groundless ground of human being namely God Thus the story of the capable man beginning with original goodness held captive by a servile will and ending with the possibility of liberation and regeneration of the heart underpins his passion for the more than possible The essays in this volume trace the fluid movement between phenomenological and religious descriptions of the capable self that emerges across Ricoeur's oeuvre and establish points of connection for future developments that might draw inspiration from this body of thought
