Ethics, Knowledge and Truth in Sports Research Graham McFee, 2009-12-16 The study of sport is characterised by its inter disciplinaryity with researchers drawing on apparently incompatible research traditions and ethical benchmarks in the natural sciences and the social sciences depending on their area of specialisation In this groundbreaking study Graham McFee argues that sound high level research into sport requires a sound rationale for one s methodological choices and that such a rationale requires an understanding of the connection between the practicalities of researching sport and the philosophical assumptions which underpin them By examining touchstone principles in research methodology such as the contested gold standard of voluntary informed consent in the natural sciences and the postmodern denial of truth in the social sciences McFee demonstrates that epistemology and ethics are inextricably linked Drawing on a wide range of examples from the laboratory to the sports field McFee explores the concepts of knowledge and truth in sports research and makes a powerful case for a philosophical deepening of our approach to method and methodology in sport This book is important reading for all advanced students and researchers working in sport exercise and related disciplines
