Everly Jr., Jeffrey M. Lating, 1994-11-30 The nosological roots of post traumatic stress disorder PTSD may be traced back to the American Psychiatric Association's DSM I entry of gross stress reaction as published in 1952 Yet the origins of the current enthusiasm with regard to post traumatic stress can be traced back to 1980 which marked the emergence of the term post traumatic stress disorder in the DSM III This reflected the American Psychiatric Association's acknowledgment of post traumatic stress as a discrete phenomenologically unique and reliable psychopathological entity at a time in American history when such recognition had important social political and psychiatric implications. Clearly prior to DSM I the lack of a generally accepted terminology did little to augment the disabling effects that psychological traumatization could engender. Nor did the subsequent provision of an official diagnostic label alone render substantial ameliorative qualities. Nevertheless the post Vietnam DSM III recognition of PTSD did herald a dramatic increase in research and clinical discovery. The American Red Cross acknowledged the need to establish disaster mental health services the American Psychological Association urged its members to form disaster mental health networks and the Veterans Administration established a national study center for PTSD.

The first edition of this book was written in response to the proliferation of research on psychological trauma along with the growing need for scientifically based evaluation of posttraumatic disturbance and its assessment. The second edition updates and expands on this endeavor. It reviews in detail a number of new trauma relevant tests that have become available since the last edition and discusses a variety of critical issues associated with trauma relevant DSM IV American Psychiatric Association 2000 diagnoses. Also included in this second edition is information on additional forms of trauma e.g. mass violence against noncombatants including the terrorist attacks of September 2001, life threatening illness and medical procedures, stalking and sex trafficking as well as added material on acute stress responses, complicated grief reactions, adjustment disorders, posttraumatic depression, panic disorder, trauma related psychosis, culture bound stress responses, peritraumatic dissociation and other dissociative responses and complex posttraumatic syndromes. In addition this edition includes a brief analysis of assault syndromes e.g. rape trauma syndrome and battered woman syndrome as they relate to trauma assessment in forensic contexts. This book devotes considerable attention to different forms of trauma exposure and describes in detail the full range of potential posttraumatic responses. In addition the reference section is relatively extensive. Although children also experience a variety of difficulties in response to major stressors this book is limited to adult posttraumatic responses.
