

My Life, My Experience!

Welcome to my blog!

My name is Santiago. I've been helping my uncle at work between Medellín and Bogotá for about 3 weeks now ( I started with my uncle but a very dear cousin arrived).

Many people were surprised when they found out that I was from another municipality, as I had never traveled there in. I stayed in hotels, where are learned that it was very easy for my uncle to work and meet new people. I have played with the new friends that I had made. I've tried new food and I meet many different things. I have taken hundreds of photographs and I had wonderful time. I hope one day these can travel with my friends to show them my house.

Contesting Cyberspace in China Rongbin Han,2018-04-10 The Internet was supposed to be an antidote to authoritarianism It can enable citizens to express themselves freely and organize outside state control Yet while online activity has helped challenge authoritarian rule in some cases other regimes have endured no movement comparable to the Arab Spring has arisen in China In Contesting Cyberspace in China Rongbin Han offers a powerful counterintuitive explanation for the survival of the world's largest authoritarian regime in the digital age Han reveals the complex internal dynamics of online expression in China showing how the state service providers and netizens negotiate the limits of discourse He finds that state censorship has conditioned online expression yet has failed to bring it under control However Han also finds that freer expression may work to the advantage of the regime because its critics are not the only ones empowered the Internet has proved less threatening than expected due to the multiplicity of beliefs identities and values online State sponsored and spontaneous pro government commenters have turned out to be a major presence on the Chinese internet denigrating dissenters and barraging oppositional voices Han explores the recruitment training and behavior of hired commenters the fifty cent army as well as group identity formation among nationalistic Internet posters who see themselves as patriots defending China against online saboteurs Drawing on a rich set of data collected through interviews participant observation and long term online ethnography as well as official reports and state directives Contesting Cyberspace in China interrogates our assumptions about authoritarian resilience and the democratizing power of the Internet
