Last year Father & I have look some pictures of us when we were in our dancing costumes at the Irish concert. It was funny because I was smiling in those pictures. I looked happy. Now I look happy when I'm scared all the time!

Learning to Divide the World John Willinsky, 1998 The barbarian rules by force the cultivated conqueror teaches This maxim from the age of empire hints at the usually hidden connections between education and conquest In Learning to Divide the World John Willinsky brings these correlations to light offering a balanced humane and beautifully written account of the ways that imperialism's educational legacy continues to separate us into black and white east and west primitive and civilized First Nations Education in Canada Marie Battiste, Jean Barman, 2011-11-01 Written mainly by First Nations and Metis people this book examines current issues in First Nations education

Magic Weapons Sam McKegney, 2007-11-30 The legacy of the residential school system ripples throughout Native Canada its fingerprints on the domestic violence poverty alcoholism drug abuse and suicide rates that continue to cripple many Native communities Magic Weapons is the first major survey of Indigenous writings on the residential school system and provides groundbreaking readings of life writings by Rita Joe Mi kmaq and Anthony Apakark Thrasher Inuit as well as in depth critical studies of better known life writings by Basil Johnston Ojibway and Tomson Highway Cree Magic Weapons examines the ways in which Indigenous survivors of residential school mobilize narrative in their struggles for personal and communal empowerment in the shadow of attempted cultural genocide By treating Indigenous life writings as carefully crafted aesthetic creations and interrogating their relationship to more overtly politicized historical discourses Sam McKegney argues that Indigenous life writings are culturally generative in ways that go beyond disclosure and recompense re envisioning what it means to live and write as Indigenous individuals in post residential school Canada

Translating Canada Luise von Flotow, Reingard M. Nischik, 2007-10-25 In the last thirty years of the twentieth century Canadian federal governments offered varying degrees of support for literary and other artistic endeavour A corollary of this patronage of culture at home was an effort to make the resulting works available for audiences elsewhere in the world Current developments in the study of translation and its influence as cultural transfer have made possible new assessments of such efforts to project a national image abroad Translating Canada examines cultural materials exported by Canada in addition to those selected for acquisition by German publishers theatres and other culture brokers It also considers the motivations of particular translators and the reception by German reviewers of works by a wide variety of Canadian writers novelists and poets playwrights and children's authors literary and social critics Above all the book maps for its readers a number of significant though frequently unsuspected roles that translation assumes in the intercultural negotiation of national images and values The chapters in this collection will be of value to students teachers and scholars in a number of fields Informed lay readers too will appreciate the authors insights into the different ways in which translation has contributed to German reception of Canadian books and culture

(In)Visible Presence: Feminist Counter-narratives of Young Adult Literature by Women of Color Traci P. Baxley, Genyne Henry Boston, 2014-09-02 Current school systems create a generation of students who experience institutional practices that honor other students needs those students who share the values of those with power and have pathologized other groups specifically women of color In Visible Presence intends to contribute to existing pedagogy which empowers students teachers administrators and policy makers to develop participatory membership in schools and among citizens who can begin to create an anti oppressive society In Visible

Presence contains a holistic thematic approach to exploring young adult YA novels written by women of color while providing cultural and historical contexts for interpreting and analyzing their work through a feminist lens Unlike other scholarship In Visible Presence uses a feminist theoretical framework to create a space in which select literary works offer counter narratives that can be analyzed and critically interpreted according to principles and ideas intended to validate women thus making their triumph over racism sexism classism and heterosexism and equity challenges a visible cause relegating consequential change for both young girls and women of color In Visible Presence maintains current discourse dialogue through a concentration on the intersectionality of gender race and class identities and how these identifiers serve as criteria for privilege and marginalization even in YA literature In Visible Presence aims to explore YA literature written by women of color represented by African American Asian American Indian American and Latina Americans Our theoretical perspective focuses on the connection of race gender and class that is exclusive to women of color The construction of voice and space is important for readers to hear from those once silenced

Genocide Literature in Middle and Secondary Classrooms

Sarah Donovan, 2016-08-12 At the heart of this inquiry into the ethical implications of education reform on reading practices in middle and secondary classrooms the central question is what is lost hidden or marginalized in the name of progress Drawing on her own experiences as an English teacher during the No Child Left Behind era the author examines school cultures focused on meeting standards and measurable outcomes She shows how genocide literature illuminates the ethics of reading and helps teachers and students rethink how literature should be taught in this modern globalized era and the purposes of education more broadly

The Girl in the Text Ann Smith, 2019-07-16 How are girls represented in written and graphic texts and how do these representations inform our understanding of girlhood In this volume contributors examine the girl in the text in order to explore a range of perspectives on girlhood across borders and in relation to their positionality In literary and transactional texts girls are presented as heroes who empower themselves and others with lasting effect as figures of liberating pedagogical practice and educational activism and as catalysts for discussions of the relationship between desire and ethics In these varied chapters a new notion of transnationalism emerges one rooted not only in the process through which borders between nation states become more porous but through which cultural and ethnic imperatives become permeable
