Learning in a Musical Key Lisa M. Hess, 2011-09-15 Learning in a Musical Key examines the multidimensional problem of the relationship between music and theological education Lisa Hess argues that in a delightful and baffling way musical learning has the potential to significantly alter and inform our conception of the nature and process of theological learning In exploring this exciting intersection of musical learning and theological training Hess asks two probing questions First What does learning from music in a performative mode require Classical modes of theological education often founder on a dichotomy between theologically musical and educational discourses It is extremely difficult for many to see how the perceived nonmusical learn from music Is musicality a universally human potential In exploring this question Hess turns to the music learning theory of Edwin Gordon which explores music s unique mode of teaching learning its primarily aural oral mode This challenge leads to the study s second question How does a theologian in the disciplinary sense integrate a performative mode into critical discourse Tracking the critical movements of this problem Hess provides an inherited transformational logic as a feasible path for integrating a performative mode into multidimensional learning This approach emerges as a distinctly relational embodied multidimensional and non correlational performative mode theology that breaks new ground in the contemporary theological landscape As an implicitly trinitarian method rooted in the relationality of God this non correlational method offers a practical theological contribution to the discipline of Christian spirituality newly claimed here as a discipline of transformative teaching learning through the highly contextualized and self implicated scholar into relationally formed communities and ultimately into the world

Haddad,John L.

Esposito,1997-07-16 Designed as a useful reference tool to help students educators and diplomats maneuver through scholarly literature as well as primary sources published in English between 1989 and 1994 this work seeks to help the researcher make sense of the explosion of literature on this often contentious topic In addition to surveying the literature on Islamic revival worldwide it provides commentary on literature pertaining to important topics such as the role of women in Islam Islamic economics and the migration of Muslims to western Europe and North America This work is a continuation of the first edition published by Greenwood in 1991 IThe Contemporary Islamic Revival R Governments policymakers and experts around the world are debating whether contemporary Islamic revival in particular Islamic Fundamentalism is a diverse and multifaceted phenomenon or a uniformly clear and present danger to be consistently and persistently repressed or eradicated Some propose that there are means of cooperation collaboration or co optation with those who adhere to it while others see it as a menace warning of a clash of civilizations and of an Islamic population explosion which poses a demographic threat to national security and world peace Bibliography of Japanese New Religions, with Annotations

Houghton-Walker,2016-05-06 Addressing a neglected aspect of John Clare s history Sarah Houghton Walker explores Clare s poetry within the framework of his faith and the religious context in which he lived While Clare expressed affection for the Established Church and other denominations on various occasions Houghton Walker brings together a vast array of evidence to show that any exploration of Clare s religious faith must go beyond pulpit and chapel Phenomena that Clare himself defines as elements of faith include ghosts witches and literature as well as concepts such as selfhood Eden eternity childhood and evil Together with more traditional religious expressions these apparently disparate features of Clare s spirituality are revealed to be of fundamental significance to his poetry and it becomes evident that Clare s experiences can tell us much about the experience of religion faith and belief in the period more generally A distinguishing characteristic of Houghton Walker's approach is her conviction that one must take into account all aspects of Clare's faith or else risk misrepresenting it. Her book thus engages not only with the facts of Clare's religious habits but also with the ways in which he was literally inspired and with how that inspiration is connected to his intimations of divinity to his vision of nature and thus to his poetry. Belief mediated through the idea of vision is found to be implicated in Clare's experiences and interpretations of the natural world and is thus shown to be critical to the content of his verse. Christian Voluntarism in Britain and North America William H. Brackney, 1995-04-25 A unique blending of historical analysis and bibliographic data this volume examines the course of the voluntary association for religious purposes and analyzes the prominent primary and secondary literature in the field of voluntarism. In addition hundreds of voluntary associations prior to 1900 in Britain the United States Canada and elsewhere are listed. A reference tool for students and scholars in Western Christian thought and history over 900 resources are classified by general denominational racial and gender categories and are annotated. The first part of the volume examines the roots of voluntary thought in the Christian tradition and provides an overview of the evolution of voluntary Christian endeavor in Britain and North America. Of particular significance is the connection between churchly voluntary associations and the evangelical experience of the 19th century. Individual voluntary relationships and groups are an integral part of human socialization. This is the first bibliography and overview of individuals joining together under the banner of Christianity in order to satisfy this deep human need. Pride, Faith, and Fear Charlotte A. Quinn, Frederick Quinn, 2003 While nearly one in every five people in the world today is Muslim Islam is spreading most rapidly in Sub Saharan Africa which is today home to over 150 million Muslims. Although immensely varied African Islam the authors demonstrate is defined by three overarching beliefs. Secularization in the Long 1960s Clive D. Field, 2017-03-09 Secularization in the Long 1960s Numerating Religion in Britain provides a major empirical contribution to the literature of secularization. It moves beyond the now largely sterile and theoretical debates about the validity of the secularization thesis or paradigm. Combining historical and social scientific perspectives Clive D. Field uses a wide range of quantitative sources to probe the extent and pace of religious change in Britain during the long 1960s. In most cases data is presented for the years 1955-80 with particular attention to the methodological and other challenges posed by each source type. Following an introductory chapter which reviews the historiography introduces the sources and defines the chronological and other parameters Field provides evidence for all major facets of religious belonging behaving and believing as well as for institutional church measures. The work engages with and largely refutes Callum G. Brown's influential assertion that Britain experienced revolutionary secularization in the 1960s which was highly gendered in nature and with 1963 the major tipping point. Instead a more nuanced picture emerges with some religious indicators in crisis others continuing on an existing downward trajectory and yet others remaining stable. Building on previous research by the author and other scholars and rejecting recent proponents of counter secularization the long 1960s are ultimately located within the context of a longstanding gradualist and still ongoing process of secularization in Britain
