Representing Race Ideology Identity And The Media:

Representing "race" Robert Ferguson, 1998 Productive media analysis is like an iceberg argues Robert Ferguson The vast bulk beneath water is the intellectual historical and analytical base without which media analysis may become superficial mechanical or glib Representing Race argues that the study of race and the media cannot be seriously undertaken without engaging with theories of ideology and without awareness of contemporary theoretical work such as approaches to Orientalism and critical discourse analysis Drawing on examples from newspapers film radio and television Ferguson demonstrates the close relationship between representations of normality and racism Providing an overview and assessment of existing research in the area Representing Race is a challenge to intellectual complacency and a warning against the temptation to normalise the very term race Media Studies Pieter J. Fourie, 2010-06 Exploring the media as an institution this volume also introduces the topics of media regulation and content The nature of communications policy is explained following overviews of internal and external media regulation Strategic ways of managing the media are discussed in addition to the guide's analysis of the ways that media presents issues of identity race gender sexual orientation the environment AIDS and terrorism Racial and Ethnic Identities in the Media Eleftheria Arapoglou, Yiorgos Kalogeras, Jopi Nyman, 2016-07-30 This volume examines the role and representation of race and ethnicity in the media with particular emphasis on the United States It highlights contemporary work that focuses on changing meanings of racial and ethnic identity as they are represented in the media television and film digital and print media are under examination Through fourteen innovative and interdisciplinary case studies written by a team of internationally based contributors the volume identifies ways in which ethnic racial and national identities have been produced reproduced stereotyped and contested It showcases new emerging theoretical approaches in the field and pays particular attention to the role of race ethnicity and national identity along with communal and transnational allegiances in the making of identities in the media The topics of the chapters range from immigrant newspapers and gangster cinema to ethnic stand up comedy and the use of race in advertising Media Representations of September 11 Steven Chermak Ph.D., Frankie Y. Bailey, Michelle Brown, 2003-10-30 The terrorist attacks on September 11th were unique and unprecedented in many ways but the day will stand in our memories particularly because of our ability to watch the spectacle unfold The blazing towers crumbling into dust black smoke rising from the Pentagon the unrecognizable remains of a fourth airplane in a quiet Pennsylvania field these images while disturbing and surreal provide an important vehicle for interdisciplinary dialogue within media studies showing us how horrific national disasters are depicted in various media Each contributor to this volume offers a fresh engaging perspective on how the media transformed the 9 11 crisis into an ideological tour de force examining why certain readings of these events were preferred and discussing the significance of those preferred meanings Yet the contributors do not limit themselves to such standard news mediums such as newspapers and television This anthology also covers comic books songs advertising Web sites and other non traditional media outlets Using a wide range of interdisciplinary approaches contributors explore such topics as the amount of time dedicated to coverage how the attacks were presented in the United States and abroad how conflicting viewpoints were addressed and how various artistic outlets dealt with the tragedy Offering a unique approach to a topic of enduring interest and importance this volume casts a new light on considerations of that day

Screens Fade to Black David J. Leonard,2006-06-30 The triple crown of Oscars awarded to Denzel Washington Halle Berry and Sidney Poitier on a single evening in 2002 seemed to mark a turning point for African Americans in cinema Certainly it was hyped as such by the media eager to overlook the nuances of this sudden embrace In this new study author David Leonard uses this event as a jumping off point from which to discuss the current state of African American cinema and the various genres that currently compose it Looking at such recent films as Love and Basketball Antwone Fisher Training Day and the two Barbershop films all of which were directed by black artists and most of which starred and were written by blacks as well Leonard examines the issues of representation and opportunity in contemporary cinema In many cases these films which walk a line between confronting racial stereotypes and trafficking in them made a great deal of money while hardly playing to white audiences at all By examining the ways in which they address the American Dream racial progress racial difference blackness whiteness class capitalism and a host of other issues Leonard shows that while certainly there are differences between the grotesque images of years past and those that define today's era the consistency of images across genre and time reflects the lasting power of racism as well as the black community's response to it
