Westbrook Expanding Curriculum Theory William M. Reynolds, Julie A. Webber, 2016-04-28 Expanding Curriculum Theory Second Edition carries through the major focus of the original volume to reflect on the influence of Deleuze and Guattari's concept of lines of flight and its application to curriculum theorizing. What is different is that the lines of flight have since shifted and produced expanded understandings of this concept for curriculum theory and for education in general. This edition reflects the impact of events that have contributed to this shift in particular the il logic of school policy changes and reforms in the past decade and the continued explosion of social media and its effect on the collective understanding of how both knowledge and education work as forms of repression. The introduction updates the text and puts it into current debates in the field and in the larger socio economic milieu. New dis positions are presented that explore central questions circulating within and outside curriculum studies. Exciting scholarship on a range of topics includes notions of desire and commodities, youth culture and violence, new directions in curriculum theory, Eco Ethical consciousness, new Deleuzian views of normality, the diffusion of technology and lines of flight in transnational curriculum inquiry. Improving Your Reflective Practice Through Stories of Practitioner Research Cath Arnold, 2012 The authors of this thought provoking text explore and document a variety of small scale practitioner research projects in home and early years settings, show how this level and depth of research has encouraged reflective practice and provide depth to the arguments for a research orientated stance towards study in the early years field. Developing Narrative Theory Ivor Goodson, 2013 We live in an age of narrative, life stories are a crucial ingredient in what makes us human and in turn what kind of human they make us. In recent years narrative analysis has grown and is used across many areas of research. Interest in this rapidly developing approach now requires the firm theoretical underpinning that would allow researchers to both approach such research in a reliably structured way and to interpret the results more effectively. Developing Narrative Theory looks at the contemporary need to study life narratives, considers the emergence and salience of life narratives in contemporary culture and discusses different forms of narrativity. It shows in detail how life story interviews are conducted and demonstrates how the process often begins with relatively unstructured life story collection but moves to a more collaborative exchange where sociological themes and historical patterns are scrutinised and mutually explored. At the core of this book the author shows that far from there being a singular form of narrative or an infinite range of unique and idiosyncratic narratives, there are in fact clusters of narrativity and particular types of narrative style. These can be grouped into four main areas: Focussed Elaborators, Scripted Describers, Armchair Elaborators and Focussed Describers. Drawing on data from several large scale studies from countries across the world, Professor Goodson details how theories of narrativity and life story analysis can combine to inform learning potential. Timely and innovative, this book will be of use to all of those employing narrative and life history methods in their research. It will also be of interest to those working in lifelong learning and with professional and self development practices. The Landscape of Qualitative Research Norman K. Denzin, 2008 The Landscape of Qualitative Research Third Edition attempts to put the field of qualitative research in context Part I provides background on the field starting with history then action research and the academy and the politics and ethics of qualitative research Part II isolates what we regard as the major historical and contemporary paradigms now structuring and influencing qualitative research in the human disciplines The chapters move from competing paradigms positivist postpositivist constructivist critical theory to specific interpretive perspectives feminisms racialized discourses cultural studies sexualities and queer theory Part III considers the future of qualitative research This text is designed for graduate students taking classes in social research methods and qualitative methods as well as researchers throughout the social sciences and in some fields within the humanities
