Partnerships for Inclusive Education Liz Todd, 2007-01-24 Shortlisted for the NASEN TES 2007 Book Award Increased partnership between professionals particularly through the integration of services indicates a major opportunity for child and parent participation but one that seems in danger of being side stepped Drawing on substantial research evidence this book looks at reasons for this situation what is happening now what developments and initiatives have been tried and what can be done to develop a culture of participation Some of the main threats to participation are discussed in this book including Has partnership ever been Who is excluded from partnership Which discourses have made participation illusive and what are the implications theoretical and practical for how we move forward Partnerships for Inclusive Education includes a helpful framework map which guides critical thinking towards the development of a culture of collaboration and presents original and stimulating ideas to open up the complex processes that can frustrate participative practice Combining socio cultural ideas with post structural thinking gives this book a strong yet accessible theoretical basis making it a valuable resource to both an academic and a professional educational audience Special Educational Needs and the Internet Chris Abbott,2003-09-02 With Internet access for every school now a reality teachers are beginning to explore the use of the Internet in the education of children with special needs This book describes its benefits for children across the spectrum of special educational needs from those with physical disabilities or sensory impairment to those with learning or social difficulties With contributions from leading practitioners in the field this book addresses the huge range of possibilities the Internet and associated technology offer for these pupils Combining current theory and debate with practical guidance and inspiring case studies this book considers how the Internet can be used to gather and publish information how to communicate effectively through technology policy and management issues for schools the continuing challenges for access and inclusion This book will be of interest to all teachers involved in special education needs in both mainstream and special schools Understanding and Promoting Access for People with Learning Difficulties Jane Seale,Melanie Nind,2009-09-10 The issue of access is at the forefront of the practical challenges facing people with learning difficulties and people working with or supporting them This engaging text brings together evidence narratives and discussions that question and advance our understanding of the concept of access for people with learning difficulties Seale and Nind draw on their expertise to analyse a wide range of situations including access to public spaces citizenship education community participation and employment Through a series of related chapters key researchers in the field of inclusion and learning difficulties enrich the access debate by considering what kind of access people with learning difficulties want identifying effective practice in relation to facilitating and promoting access revealing the capability of people with learning difficulties to seek and achieve access to potentially exclusionary communities providing a space for a wide range of people to share access stories With contributions from a variety of stakeholders including people with learning difficulties Understanding and Promoting Access for People with Learning Difficulties clarifies the concept of access without over simplifying what is involved Through rigorous critique this book provides a unique rationale for a new multi dimensional model of access and ways of promoting it Proposing a reconceptualisation of the risk associated with promoting access for people with learning difficulties this book will be of immense interest to students researchers and professionals involved in inclusion and disability issues Beyond Conventional Boundaries Daniela Mercieca,2011-11-22 The impact which my decisions will have on this child's life is enormous and far reaching. Relatively speaking the impact which she will have on my life is minimal. She will be a thought in my mind at most an incessant worry. Yet even this is grudged. We professionals tell each other that we have to leave our work behind when we go home. Don't take your work worries with you. p. 85 This book calls for a rethinking of practice and research with children in the helping professions. In the context of today's fast world with its requirement for order and precision the practice of working with children is imbued with ethical dilemmas which practitioners may or may not be aware of. It is important for the practitioner to feel suspended in uncertainty before taking action. In terms of research the complexity of what is explored is reflected in the complexity of the research method. In a parallel writing this uncertainty is a central theme in practice through the narrative of three stories of the author's involvement with children referred for support. The book explores how uncertainty and anxiety can be turned to good use rather than being a debilitating force to the practising psychologist. It also touches upon issues of performativity, accountability and efficiency in the becoming of professionals in the helping professions. Re-Thinking Autism Sami Timimi, Rebecca Mallett, Katherine Runswick-Cole,2016-05-05 Disputing the existing accepted approaches to autism and the focus on diagnosis and treatment this book challenges the attitudes, assumptions and prejudices around autism that are generated from the medical model suggesting that they can be marginalising, limiting and potentially damaging to the individuals labelled with autism.

Autism and It's History in Education - An Outline of Past and Current Effective Educational Options Regina Varin-Mignano, Critical Educational Psychology Antony J. Williams, Tom Billington, Dan Goodley, Tim Corcoran,2016-10-18 The first textbook of its kind. Critical Educational Psychology is a forward thinking approach to educational psychology that uses critical perspectives to challenge current ways of thinking and improve practice.

Disability and Psychology Dan Goodley, Rebecca Lawthom,2005-10-30 Disability is not just the physical sensory or intellectual impairments a person has but the exclusion from society they face as a result. Organisations for disabled people are a growing voice in challenging this exclusion and anti-discrimination legislation is helping to change the structures in society that have contributed to it. This book examines the discipline of psychology in this regard. It argues that psychology has tended to ignore the socio-cultural aspects of disability and treat disabled people as objects rather than arbiters of psychological intervention. Bringing together disabled and non-disabled researchers and psychologists this book proposes ideas for an enabling psychological theory and practice and addresses questions such as: How can we support the inclusion of disabled children? Can therapy enable rather than pathologise? What can be learnt from the experience of disabled psychologists? How can psychology contribute to social models of disability? In examining these issues this volume challenges the reader to reconsider the relationship between disability studies and psychology and to do so in ways that contribute to the emancipation rather than the exclusion of disabled people. A key text for students on relevant courses within disability studies and psychology degrees this book is also an important resource for those who study or work in the areas of healthcare studies nursing sociology and social work Dan Goodley is a Reader in disability studies University of Sheffield with research interests in disability theory activism and methodology Rebecca Lawthom is Principal Lecturer in psychology Manchester Metropolitan University and a member of the Research Institute for Health and Social Change Her research interests are in disability community and feminist psychology
