Sergeant Death:

Death Work Vincent E. Henry, 2004-04-01 In this fascinating new book Vincent Henry a 21 year veteran of the NYPD who recently retired to become a university professor explores the psychological transformations and adaptations that result from police officers encounters with death Police can encounter death frequently in the course of their duties and these encounters may range from casual contacts with the deaths of others to the most profound and personally consequential confrontations with their own mortality Using the survivor psychology model as its theoretical base this insightful and provocative research ventures into a previously unexplored area of police psychology to illuminate and explore the new modes of adaptation thought and feeling that result from various types of death encounters in police work The psychology of survival asserts that the psychological world of the survivor one who has come in close physical or psychic contact with death but nevertheless managed to live is characterized by five themes psychic numbing death guilt the death imprint suspicion of counterfeit nurturance and the struggle to make meaning These themes become manifest in the survivor's behavior permeating his or her lifestyle and worldview Drawing on extensive interviews with police officers in five nominal categories rookie officers patrol sergeants crime scene technicians homicide detectives and officers who survived a mortal combat situation in which an assailant or another officer died Henry identifies the impact such death encounters have upon the individual the police organization and the occupational culture of policing He has produced a comprehensive and highly textured interpretation of police psychology and police behavior bolstered by the unique insights that come from his personal experience as an officer his intimate familiarity with the subtleties and nuances of the police culture's value and belief systems and his meticulous research and rigorous method Death Work provides a unique prism through which to view the individual organizational and social dynamics of contemporary urban policing With a foreword by Robert Jay Lifton and a chapter devoted to the local police response to the World Trade Center attacks Death Work will be of interest to psychologists and criminal justice experts as well as police officers eager to gain insight into their unique relationship to death

Death of a Young Lieutenant B.R. Stateham, 2023-02-24 Jake Reynolds is an art thief A master artist who can create an exact replica of any famous canvas in intricate detail So precise and elegant is his work that even today hanging on the walls of the most prestigious museums and art galleries around the world are some of his brilliant recreations It's the early 20th century and this brilliant criminal is destined to rub shoulders with the famous and infamous From Churchill to Mengele Wright brothers to Picasso In one fashion or another he would know them all But for a lucky and daring man Jake is plagued with one unlucky debilitating weakness Every time he stumbles upon the corpse of a murder victim a peculiar sense of outrage takes over him Even though he's a criminal himself something within him rebels at the thought of a murderer getting away after committing such a heinous crime Compelled by this Jake is determined to find any killer that comes across his way and bring them to justice And when they do Jake has no choice The hunt is on Whoever said Fate smiled upon the

Dartford in the Great War Stephen Wynn,2016-01-31 Dartford was a hive of activity during the Great War years with most in the community doing their bit for the war effort in what ever way that they could For men that meant enlisting in the armed forces and for women that they were to take up roles that previously belonged to men They worked in industry delivered post drove buses and taxis and became carpenters and plumbers They were also heavily relied on by volunteer organizations such as Voluntary Aid Detachments the Women s Auxiliary Army Corps and later in the war the Women s Land Army Nearby there was a large munitions factory in the town which maintained a large yet productive mostly female workforce to ensure it met the ever increasing demand for shells and bullets and throughout the town hospitals to cared for the wounded servicemen of Britain Australia America and even Germany whose captured military personnel were held at one of many local prisoner of war camps Joyce Green Aerodrome was home to units of the Royal Flying Corps and latterly the Royal Air Force who protected both Dartford and London from air raids This book cover how Dartford endured thirty seven German air raids Miraculously not one local resident was killed At the end of the war the people of Dartford returned to the normality of life as best as they could but the world had changed forever For those who had lost loved ones and over 300 local families had the changes would always be a painful reminder of the terrible price of the war Dartford in the Great War is a meticulous and compelling account of this town and its dedicated people who sacrificed so much in their effort to thrive in one history s most difficult periods English Letters and Indian Literacies Hilary E. Wyss,2012-07-17 As rigid and unforgiving as the boarding schools established for the education of Native Americans could be the intellectuals who engaged with these schools including Mohegans Samson Occom and Joseph Johnson and Montauketts David and Jacob Fowler in the eighteenth century and Cherokees Catharine and David Brown in the nineteenth became passionate advocates for Native community as a political and cultural force From handwriting exercises to Cherokee Syllabary texts Native students negotiated a variety of pedagogical practices and technologies using their hard won literacy skills for their own purposes By examining the materials of literacy primers spellers ink paper and instructional manuals as well as the products of literacy letters journals confessions reports and translations English Letters and Indian Literacies explores the ways boarding schools were for better or worse a radical experiment in cross cultural communication Focusing on schools established by New England missionaries first in southern New England and later among the Cherokees Hilary E Wyss explores both the ways this missionary culture attempted to shape and define Native literacy and the Native response to their efforts She examines the tropes of readerly Indians passive and grateful recipients of an English cultural model and writerly Indians those fluent in the colonial culture but also committed to Native community as a political and cultural concern to develop a theory of literacy and literate practice that complicates and enriches the study of Native self expression Wyss s literary readings of archival sources published works and correspondence incorporate methods from gender studies the history of the book indigenous intellectual history and transatlantic American studies Dominant Impressions Gerald Lynch,Angela Robbeson,1999 Canadian critics and scholars along with a growing number from around the world have long recognized the achievements of Canadian short story writers However these critics have tended to view the Canadian short story as a historically recent phenomenon This reappraisal corrects this mistaken view by exploring the literary and cultural antecedents of the Canadian short story Published in English
