Category Theory in Physics, Mathematics, and Philosophy Marek Kuś,Bartłomiej Skowron,2019-11-11 The contributions gathered here demonstrate how categorical ontology can provide a basis for linking three important basic sciences mathematics physics and philosophy Category theory is a new formal ontology that shifts the main focus from objects to processes The book approaches formal ontology in the original sense put forward by the philosopher Edmund Husserl namely as a science that deals with entities that can be exemplified in all spheres and domains of reality It is a dynamic processual and non substantial ontology in which all entities can be treated as transformations and in which objects are merely the sources and aims of these transformations Thus in a rather surprising way when employed as a formal ontology category theory can unite seemingly disparate disciplines in contemporary science and the humanities such as physics mathematics and philosophy but also computer and complex systems science

Paul Benjamin,2012-12-06 Change of Representation and Inductive Bias One of the most important emerging concerns of machine learning researchers is the dependence of their learning programs on the underlying representations especially on the languages used to describe hypotheses The effectiveness of learning algorithms is very sensitive to this choice of language choosing too large a language permits too many possible hypotheses for a program to consider precluding effective learning but choosing too small a language can prohibit a program from being able to find acceptable hypotheses This dependence is not just a pitfall however it is also an opportunity The work of Saul Amarel over the past two decades has demonstrated the effectiveness of representational shift as a problem solving technique An increasing number of machine learning researchers are building programs that learn to alter their language to improve their effectiveness At the Fourth Machine Learning Workshop held in June 1987 at the University of California at Irvine it became clear that the both the machine learning community and the number of topics it addresses had grown so large that the representation issue could not be discussed in sufficient depth A number of attendees were particularly interested in the related topics of constructive induction problem reformulation representation selection and multiple levels of abstraction Rob Holte Larry Rendell and I decided to hold a workshop in 1988 to discuss these topics To keep this workshop small we decided that participation be by invitation only
