until World War II competing spheres of professional identity and practice redrew the field of history establishing fundamental differences between the roles of university historians archivists staff at historical societies history teachers and others In History's Babel Robert B Townsend takes us from the beginning of this professional shift when the work of history included not just original research but also teaching and the gathering of historical materials to a state of microprofessionalization that continues to define the field today Drawing on extensive research among the records of the American Historical Association and a multitude of other sources Townsend traces the slow fragmentation of the field from 1880 to the divisions of the 1940s manifest today in the diverse professions of academia teaching and public history By revealing how the founders of the contemporary historical enterprise envisioned the future of the discipline he offers insight into our own historical moment and the way the discipline has adapted and changed over time Townsend's work will be of interest not only to historians but to all who care about how the professions of history emerged how they might go forward
