Price Distortions in Agriculture and Their Effects Malcolm D. Bale, Ernst Lutz, 1985 Catalog of Staff Working Papers, 1985 World Bank, 1985 Adjustment Policies in Developing Countries, 1979-1983 Bela Balassa, 1984 World Bank Staff Working Paper, 1985 Paying for Health Services in Developing Countries David M. De Ferranti, Kazimierz Poznański, Yoon Joo Lee, 1985 Development Problems of Mineral-exporting Countries Gobind T. Nankani, World Bank, 1985 Private Direct Foreign Investment in Developing Countries Klaus Billerbeck, Y. Yasugi, 1979 Interest Rate Policies in Selected Developing Countries, 1970-1982 James A. Hanson, Craig R. Neal, 1985 This paper examines the level and structure of interest rates for the period 1970-82 in ten developing countries: Bangladesh, Kenya, Korea, Morocco, Nigeria, Pakistan, Peru, Thailand, Turkey, and Uruguay. In addition, the paper briefly examines the countries' broader financial and economic policies. In most cases, nominal interest rates were controlled by the governments and varied substantially less than inflation during this period. As a result, real interest rates rose or fell with declines or increases in inflation; hence, highly negative real rates were a direct reflection of high inflation. A simple grouping of nine of the ten sample countries into two categories demonstrates this clearly: the first group (six countries) had low inflation and mildly negative real rates which averaged within a few percentage points of the corresponding averages for the industrialized countries; and the second group (three countries) had high inflation and highly negative real rates which averaged ten to twenty-five percentage points below rates in the industrialized countries. The tenth country, Uruguay, switched from the high inflation, highly negative real rate group to a high inflation, highly positive and volatile real rate category about half way through the period due to a major liberalization and thus did not fall into either category. Macroeconomic Effects of Efficiency Pricing in the Public Sector in Egypt Sadiq Ahmed, 1985 This paper presents an economy-wide framework called MISR2 that provides a general equilibrium evaluation of these costs: 4 rationing, subsidization as relates to households. In this paper, MISR2 is used mainly to analyze the effects of adjustments in public sector prices in the regimes governing trade exchange rates. World Bank Staff Working Paper J. van der Gaag, 1984 The Japanese and Korean Experiences in Managing Development Miyoei Shinohara, Kwang Suk Kim, 1983 The remarkable economic growth achieved by Japan and Korea makes analysis of the style of economic management practiced in each of special interest. Some similarities emerge specifically a strong partnership between government and the private sector, an export-oriented development strategy, and emphasis on education and the development of skills. The policies differed in that government became the more senior partner and the apparatus of planning and policy making was more centralized and streamlined in Korea and Korea relied much more on foreign trade. Although the experience of these two countries in general confirms that prices, markets, and outward orientation can play a significant part in economic development, their styles of economic management do not fall neatly into the conventional pigeonholes in economics. No definitive conclusions as to transferability of the Japanese and Korean techniques emerge, but some important inferences can be drawn from the experiences of Japan and Korea regarding the power of prices and role of competition both internal and external World Bank Staff Working Papers, 1985 Government Policy and the Development of Financial Markets Arvind Virmani, 1985 Exchange Rate Adjustment Under Generalized Currency Floating Bela A. Balassa, Gary S. Fields, Romeo M. Bautista, 1980 Evaluation of Financial Policy Arvind Virmani, Hinh T. Dinh, Martha Ainsworth, 1984 Structural Adjustment Lending Fahrettin Yagci, Steven Kamin, Vicki Rosenbaum, 1985 Index of Publications World Bank, 1988 The External Debt of Sub-Saharan Africa Fahrettin Yagci, Felipe Morris, Jean Baneth, Kathie L. Krumm, 1985 The Nature of Credit Markets in Developing Countries Arvind Virmani, 1982 Exchange Controls and Parallel Market Economies in Sub-Saharan Africa Ernesto May, 1985 This paper provides a theoretical framework to understand the way in which exchange controls modify the behavior of the different agents in the economy leading to the creation of a parallel market economy It gives the necessary theoretical elements to analyze this parallel market economy and provides a simple methodology to obtain relevant quantitative information about it Finally the paper elaborates on some of the policy implications of the existence of a parallel market economy The model developed shows that the parallel market activities can be explained through the optimizing behavior of exporters and importers which determines the amount of import and export smuggling the level of the rent seeking activity and the black market exchange rate that is consistent with an equilibrium position where no one has any more incentives to move from their attained position A method to detect the presence and assess the magnitude of the parallel market economy as well as to explain its behavior quantitatively is then developed and applied to the case of Ghana
