Faith Has Its Reasons Kenneth Boa, Robert M. Bowman Jr., 2012-01-05 A most accessible but thoroughly practical primer on apologetics

Martin Luther: The Problem with Faith and Reason David Andersen, 2012-09-01 Luther's critics have consistently charged him as an irrationalist and pessimist concerning reason's capabilities and even by his followers as a fideist who sees little or no relationship between faith and reason In this book David Andersen offers a fresh and timely re evaluation of Luther and his understanding of the relationship between faith and reason based upon a thorough engagement with Luther's mature writings Dr Andersen persuasively argues that far from being either an irrationalist or a fideist Luther stands within an empiricist tradition and that his pronouncements on fallen human reason can be understood only from that philosophical perspective Based upon recent research into the writings of William of Ockham who positively influenced Luther in this area Dr Andersen also shows that Luther can no longer be charged as a pessimist concerning human knowledge Reason has an important role to play for Luther in bringing one to faith and the objectivity of Christ's resurrection serves as that focal point that validates all Christian discourse In subordinating itself to the facts of the death and resurrection of Christ for the forgiveness of sins reason's created function is restored to some extent as it receives that forgiveness in the words of Holy Scripture and the visible means of Baptism and the Lord's Supper

God and Evidence Rob Lovering, 2013-06-20 God and Evidence presents a new set of compelling problems for theistic philosophers The problems pertain to three types of theistic philosopher which Lovering defines here as theistic inferentialists theistic non inferentialists and theistic fideists Theistic inferentialists believe that God exists that there is inferential probabilifying evidence of God's existence and that this evidence is discoverable not simply in principle but in practice Theistic non inferentialists believe that God exists that there is non inferential probabilifying evidence of God's existence and that this evidence is discoverable not simply in principle but in practice Theistic fideists believe that God exists that there is no discoverable probabilifying evidence inferential or non inferential of God's existence and that it is nevertheless acceptable morally if not otherwise to have faith that God exists Lovering argues that each type of theistic philosopher faces a problem unique to his type and that they all share two particular problems Some of these problems take us down an entirely new discursive path others down a new discursive path branching off from an old one

On Religious Diversity Robert McKim, 2012-01-23 In On Religious Diversity Robert McKim distinguishes and examines a number of possible responses to the knowledge of diverse religious traditions that is available to all of us today There is no escaping the fact that the presence of competing traditions now confronts each of the traditions in a new and forceful way And there is widespread if inchoate recognition of genuine religious sensibilities and genuine religious seriousness in others How might and how should an awareness of other traditions affect a member of a particular religious tradition What attitudes should be taken to the beliefs and salvific prospects of members of other traditions McKim examines several proposed answers to these questions offering the deepest analysis to date of such options as exclusivism and inclusivism He argues that what look like well defined and discrete positions dissolve somewhat under scrutiny revealing significantly different possibilities McKim suggests where best to look for the most plausible answers and makes a case for the attractiveness of inclusivistic options He pays particular attention to the religiously ambiguous nature of our circumstances and to the implications of this ambiguity
