Paul,2009-01-01 In 1948 the Afrikaner Nationalist Government became the ruling party in South Africa and instituted the brutal system known as apartheid To maintain their power Afrikaners drew on Christian scripture and traditions to create self justifying religious narratives that supported their oppressive ideologies prohibiting inclusion and suppressing pluralism In time these Afrikaner Christian narratives began to unravel as counter narratives within the Christian tradition influenced the Black church to demand equality and democracy This socio political and cultural transformation is best understood and interpreted through the vision of ubuntu a mode of thought in African culture that places a value on humanity in community and shifts the focus from singularity to plurality in South African society In The Ubuntu God Samuel A Paul traces how the dismantling of apartheid led to recognition of the religious other the recovery of alternate narratives and the reappearance of ubuntu perspective and practice in the political and public sphere After the peaceful transition to a democratically elected government the Truth and Reconciliation Commission created a platform for multiple voices stories and religious narratives to be shared in a public political context This multiplicity of voices resulted ultimately in the formation of a new constitution for South Africa that sought to uphold African values of community and inclusion in its institutions While South Africa's apartheid system and the Truth and Reconciliation Commission are both rooted in the biblical narrative the former used its theology to enforce an iron rule while the latter combined Christian and African concepts to create a pluralistic and open society Such a society is characterized by a culture that emphasizes communality and interdependence *Gem S Eng. Technology as Magic Richard Stivers, Peter Stirk, 2001-08-01 What gives the mass media particularly advertising and television their extraordinary power over our lives so that even the most jaded and sophisticated among us are troubled and fascinated by their allure The secret according to Richard Stivers in this brilliant new book lies in the curious relationship between technology and magic Stivers argues the two are now related to one another in such a way that each has taken on important characteristics of the other His contention is that our expectations for technology have become magical to the point that they have generated a multitude of imitation technologies that function as magical practices These imitation technologies flourish in the fields of psychology management administration and the mass media and their paramount purpose in human adjustment and control Advertising and television programs in particular contain the key magical rituals of our civilization In a fascinating analysis of television programming Stivers shows how various genres news sports game shows soap operas sitcoms etc have their distinct mythological symbols Through dramatized information they symbolically connect consumer goods and services to desired outcomes the utopian goals of success happiness and health thus enveloping technology both real and imitation in a magical cocoon The Effect of Science on the Second World War G. Hartcup, B.

Lovell, 2016-01-08 The latest advances in science were fully exploited in the Second World War They included radar sonar improved radio methods of reducing disease primitive computers the new science of operational research and finally the atomic bomb necessarily developed like all wartime technology in a remarkably short time Such progress would have been impossible without the cooperation of Allied scientists with the military The Axis powers failure to recognise this was a major factor in their defeat
