Radiation Risk, Risk Perception and Social Constructions J. B. Reitan, G. N. Kelly, 1996      The Social and Cultural Construction of Risk B.B. Johnson, V.T. Covello, 2012-12-06

The Social and Cultural Construction of Risk Issues Methods and Case Studies Vincent T Covello and Branden B Johnson Risks to health safety and the environment abound in the world and people cope as best they can But before action can be taken to control reduce or eliminate these risks decisions must be made about which risks are important and which risks can safely be ignored The challenge for decision makers is that consensus on these matters is often lacking Risks believed by some individuals and groups to be tolerable or acceptable such as the risks of nuclear power or industrial pollutants are intolerable and unacceptable to others This book addresses this issue by exploring how particular technological risks come to be selected for societal attention and action Each section of the volume examines from a different perspective how individuals groups communities and societies decide what is risky how risky it is and what should be done The writing of this book was inspired by another book Risk and Culture An Essay on the Selection of Technological and Environmental Dangers Published in 1982 and written by two distinguished scholars Mary Douglas a British social anthropologist and Aaron Wildavsky an American political scientist the book received wide critical attention and offered several provocative ideas on the nature of risk selection perception and acceptance

It provides an account of how interpretations of risk in society are conditioned by knowledge, claims and cultural assumptions and by the orientation of actors based on roles, norms, expectations, identities, trust and practical rationality within a lived social world. By focusing on agency, social complexity and the production and interpretation of meaning, the book offers a comprehensive and holistic theoretical perspective on risk based on empirical case studies and ethnographic enquiry. As a selection of Asa Boholm's publications throughout her career along with a newly written introduction overviewing the field, this book provides a unified perspective on risk as a construct shaped by social and cultural contexts. This collection should be of interest to students and scholars of risk communication, risk management, environmental planning, environmental management and environmental and applied anthropology.      The Perception of Risk Paul Slovic, 2016-10-06 The concept of risk is an outgrowth of our society's great concern about coping with the dangers of modern life. The Perception of Risk brings together the work of Paul Slovic, one of the world's leading analysts of risk, risk perception and risk management to examine the gap between expert views of risk and public perceptions. Specific genetically modified whole foods and food ingredients that have recently become available or are about to become available are described and discussed in relation to their technical performance and consumer acceptance. The regulatory, ethical and communication issues in food biotechnology are also reviewed. As the
