Rural Change In The Third World Pakistan And The Aga Khan Rural Support Program:

Rural Change in the Third World Mahmood Hasan Khan, Shoiab Sultan Khan, 1992-03-19 This study examines a particularly successful rural development program the partnership of the Aga Khan Rural Support Program AKRSP and the small farmers of northern Pakistan The Aga Khan Rural Support Program was established in 1982 to act as a catalyst for the development of rural people living in the high mountain valleys of the Himalayas Karakorum and Hindu Kush The experiment is based upon the premise that rural people can improve their economic and social status through organization at the village level This experiment in regional development affecting the lives of nearly 500 000 people has been outstandingly successful and should provide a model with generalizable lessons for policymakers practitioners and researchers in economic development The World Bank has concluded that the Aga Khan Rural Support Program continues to be remarkably successful and provides a hopeful prospect that rural development can be made to work The authors demonstrate that the organizational model found in the AKRSP is sustainable provided prospective beneficiaries participate fully and that the AKRSP experiment can be used successfully in other rural underdeveloped areas that the rural poor can be organized to promote their own economic and social development

Creating Sustainable Community Programs Mark R. Daniels, 2001-02-28 Public opinion polls consistently reveal the lack of confidence disillusionment and mistrust that citizens feel toward government Daniels and his contributors believe that the relationship between citizens and their governments can be changed by facilitating greater citizen collaboration with government particularly through local sustainable programs As the case studies show often sustainable community programs are created through grassroots movements that are initiated and managed by citizens themselves bringing them in contact with their local elected and appointed officials Unlike traditional programs that are administered by local officials on behalf of their citizens once sustainable community programs are created citizens administer their own programs in collaboration with local officials The case studies look at a variety of sustainable programs primarily in the United States that help to deal with issues such as recycling transportation microcredit site redevelopment pollution health care and hunger Creating Sustainable Community Programs is the first book on sustainable programs that is intended for an audience of public administration scholars researchers and students as well as practitioners who are searching for ways to change the relationship between citizens and their governments

Social Capital and Collective Action in Pakistani Rural Development Shaheen Rafi Khan, Shahrukh Rafi Khan, 2021-05-14 This book distinguishes conceptually between indigenous and constructed social capital and the associated spontaneous and induced collective action for rural development and natural resource preservation While some of the case studies in this book show that induced collective action can lead to cost effective community centric and empirically grounded rural development initiatives other case studies show that spontaneous collective action based on indigenous social capital can result in resource preservation positive development outcomes and resistance to the excesses engendered by conventional development The authors also explore a hybrid form whereby spontaneous collective action is given a more effective and sustainable shape by an outside organization with experience of induced collective action Exploring alternative community centric paths to development especially those attuned with sustainability imperatives is part of a global search for solutions While the volume draws on the Pakistani case the problem with conventional development approaches and the need for complementary alternatives is not unique to only this country and the volume has broader relevance to students and researchers across the fields of social policy and development

Rural Development ,1988      Ismaili Literature Farhad Daftary,2005-03-23 Ismaili Studies represents one of the most recent fields of Islamic Studies Much new research has taken place in this field as a result of the recovery of a large number of Ismaili texts Ismaili Literature contains a complete listing of the sources and secondary studies including theses written by Ismailis or about them in all major Islamic and European languages It also contains chapters surveying Ismaili history and developments in modern Ismaili Studies      State & NGOs Shinichi Shigetomi,2003-08-01 There is already much literature on the significance of NGOs in the development process However there has been little discussion on why the NGOs take on different forms in different countries This volume examines the state NGO relationships in fifteen countries It is not however a pot pourri of country reports All the contributors use the same analytical framework and focus on the key concept of the economic and political space for NGOs Readers will find that the analysis of the various NGO forms is well synthesized in this volume      Sharing the City John Abbott,2013-11-05 While the rate of urbanisation in the developing world has increased dramatically over the past 20 years governments capacity to support urban growth has in many cases failed to keep up with this trend Non governmental organisations working in the field have long advocated community management of the urban environment as the best solution to this problem and there is now a growing consensus that the answer does indeed lie with local communities Yet there is still little understanding of what constitutes meaningful and effective community participation or how it may be achieved in such a complex operating environment Sharing the City gives a comprehensive account of urban community participation both in theory and practice It first presents a wide ranging analysis of the issues and develops a participatory framework for urban management Using case studies and existing examples from around the world and drawing on lessons learned from previous experience it then develops the theory into a practical working model Effective participatory urban management calls for a fundamental rethink on the part of all the actors involved from local authorities and development agencies through local and international NGOs to the community based organisations and the communities themselves In redefining their roles and relationships Sharing the City presents a new and radically different yet viable and effective approach to the concept of urban management      Abstracts on Rural Development in the Tropics ,1993      A Microcredit Alternative in South Asia Shahrukh Rafi Khan,Natasha Ansari,2018-03-28 Microcredit took the development world by storm as a tool for poverty alleviation in the 1980s After being hailed as a panacea a few decades on it started being forcefully criticised based on its practice This book explores Akhuwat literally brotherhood a rapidly growing Pakistani NGO formed in 2001 which addresses the shortcomings of conventional microfinance Its vision is of a society built on empathy and social solidarity and its mission is that of creating self sufficiency among the entrepreneurial poor This book examines whether Akhuwat fulfils its promises of not pushing loans or encouraging clients to get on a debt treadmill and helping them to avoid high debt burdens by charging no interest and easing repayment terms Conventional microcredit organizations are criticised for losing sight of the original mission of poverty alleviation by engaging in empire building and Akhuwat's goal is to avoid this by embracing an alternative strategy of scaling up. Finally, this book also analyses Akhuwat's approach as being gender sensitive and embracing all religions, castes and ethnicities. Based on fieldwork designed to assess if Akhuwat is the microcredit alternative it claims to be, this book will be of interest to scholars of poverty and development studies in general and microcredit in particular.

Community-Led Development in Practice Elene Cloete, Gunjan Veda, 2024-12-13

In the last decade, the international development sector has been re-examining its ways of thinking, being and doing, and we have seen a growing consensus around the need to centre communities in development. However, there is little clarity on what such centring entails and how it can be achieved. This edited volume addresses this gap by highlighting what community-led practices look like and how they compare across different sociocultural and organisational landscapes. Bringing together the work of over 30 international authors ranging from experienced community-led development practitioners to acclaimed scholars, the book reflects on and critically analyses grassroots initiatives, national level organisations and larger scale international operations. The case studies demonstrate the similarities and differences in community-led practices according to organisational size and spread while documenting the process of human change that these practices unleash. The volume's overarching structure reflects the characteristics and processes of community-led development captured via nine different dimensions: participation, inclusion and voice, local resources, sustainability and exit strategies, accountability, responsiveness to context, collaboration including working with sub-national governments, community-led monitoring and evaluation practices and facilitation. The book will be of interest to funders, organisations and practitioners looking for non-Western, non-dominant everyday stories of change. It will also be useful to policymakers, students and researchers from the fields of community development and international development theory and practice.
