Rural Labor Migration, Discrimination, and the New Dual Labor Market in China Guifu Chen, Shigeyuki Hamori, 2013-11-29 This book studies some important issues in China's labor market such as rural labor migration employment and wage discrimination the new dual labor market and economic returns on schooling using the newer and representative data and advanced estimation models This approach has yielded many interesting results including a solution to the dilemma of two ongoing crises since 2004 the rural labor surplus and severe shortage of migrant labor While male workers generally received less favorable treatment and consequently enjoyed a lower average employment probability than female workers in 1996 they also received preferential treatment over female workers who otherwise had identical worker characteristics in 2005 We provide new estimates for male female hourly wage differentials in urban China and our results indicate that the hourly wage differentials and the unexplained part of the hourly wage differentials are smaller than the differentials obtained by ignoring the sample selection bias We study China's new dual labor market which is shifting from a rural migration versus urban workers setup to informal workers versus formal workers setup and present some interesting results Our study is the first to adopt the IV methodology and the Heckman 1979 two step procedure simultaneously for the estimation of economic returns on schooling in China

China's Left-Behind Children Xiaojin Chen, 2024-04-12 One unintended consequence of the unprecedented rural to urban migration in China over the past three decades is the exponentially increased number of left behind children children whose parents migrated to more developed areas and who live with one parent or other extended family members The daily lives of these children including their caretaking arrangements parent child bonding and communication and schooling are fraught with distractions and uncertainties. Paying special attention to this marginalized group, this book investigates the role of parental migration and the left behind status in shaping Chinese family dynamics and children's general wellbeing, including their school performance, delinquency, resilience, feelings of ambiguous loss, and other psychological problems. Blending theory, empirical research, and real world interviews with left behind children, China's Left Behind Children provides a uniquely close look at these children's lives while also providing the larger national context that defines and shapes their everyday lives.

The State and Society of China Yong Gao, Ying Wu, 2017-10-27 This book places the topic of the state and society in the context of modern development in China over the past century, investigating the dynamic relation and internal tension between the state's power enhancement and society's vitality activation, instead of simply regarding the country and society as two separate entities. Building a modern country and activating the people's vitality involves three closely linked and mutually supporting aspects: establishing the identity recognition of the people to unite the nation, adjusting the organizational system of the society to promote mobilization, and instituting a social incentive system and determining dominant strategies and means for the interaction between the country and society to address social governance issues. This book carefully sheds light on the logic behind China's roundabout strategy for building a modern country and motivating the vitality of its people.

Inclusive Development and Poverty Reduction Changsheng Zuo, Chengwei Huang, Xiaojun He, Xiaolin Wang, 2021-02-06 This book discusses poverty reduction and inclusive development in China. Although China is the first country to have achieved the UN's Millennium Development Goals, it still faces enormous problems and challenges in terms of narrowing the income gap, reducing poverty, and attaining sustainable development. This book not only provides valuable theoretical material to help readers understand inclusive development and poverty reduction in today's China but also offers relevant government authorities a solid theoretical and practical basis for informed decision making.

Unyong-jon Michael J. Pettid, Kil Cha Pettid, 2009 Review The story is about a girl who is chosen to receive a literary education in the Korean palace. She, among the other 9 girls, excels at poetry and lives a truly blessed life compared to the average life of someone of her birth and sex. The main heartbreak of all the girls, but more so for Unyong, is that she will never be allowed to marry or have a romantic relationship. One day a poet prodigy comes to the palace to meet with the prince who is the girl's patron. He writes such sublime poetry that Unyong falls in love with him and writes to him at which point he falls in love with her. The book is about their love affair and the hardships they must endure due to Confucian society that disallows them their natural disposition from <http://www.amazon.com> Dec 17 2014

Childhood, Youth and Migration Christine Hunner-Kreisel, Sabine Bohne, 2016-07-15 This book shows the different ways in which migration matters in the context of global and local childhood and youth. Furthermore, it highlights that childhood, youth, and migration, as well as local and global perspectives, need to be thought and analyzed together to address the significant dimensions of social inequality in the context of growing up Migration as a phenomenon is most often motivated by the search for a better life Very often children and young people migrating alone or together with their families migrate to ameliorate their own or others living conditions and seize opportunities for realizing a good life Today as well as in the past this search for a better life is very often triggered by socio economic reasons war or terrorism Against the backdrop of the topic raised above the book deals with children and young people s own perspective in countries of migration It promotes the idea of connecting global and local issues of childhood and youth with a special focus on questions of education It studies questions of global and local living and highlights living circumstances shaped by patterns of migration and mobility
