Office of the Economic Adviser,1915 The Submarine Duncan Redford,2010-07-30 Underhand and damned un English was the view of submarines in Edwardian Britain Yet by the 1960s the new nuclear powered submarines were seen by the Royal Navy as being the hallmark of a first class navy In this book Duncan Redford a retired Royal Navy submarine officer explores how and why attitudes to the submarine changed in Britain between 1900 and 1977 Using a wide array of previously unpublished sources Redford sheds light on what the British thought about submarines both their own and those that were used against them Rather than providing an operational history of Britain s submarines this book looks at naval and civilian conceptions of what submarine warfare was imagined to be like in the context of unrestricted submarine warfare the world wars and the development of nuclear weaponry With chapters on the coronation and jubilee reviews at Spithead the submarine in novels and films as well as coverage of the Royal Navy s and civilian views of submarines and submarine warfare this book gives a comprehensive view of the British regard or lack of it for the submarine Through the examination of the British relationship with submarines since 1900 it is possible to see changing patterns in acceptance and tensions between different sub cultures both civil and maritime Since 1900 the meaning constructed around submarines has changed as the submarine has progressed along a road from perdition as the weapon of the weaker power and morally weaker power too to a form of redemption as a major capital unit This book will be essential for naval historians students and those interested in aspects of submarine development and use Seaborne Trade Charles Ernest Fayle,1920 Report Commonwealth Shipping Committee,1914 Norwegian Shipping in the 20th Century Stig Tenold,2018-11-21 This book is open access under a CC BY NC ND 4 0 license This book belongs to the Maritime Business and Economic History strand of the Palgrave Studies in Maritime Economics book series This open access book discusses how Norwegian shipping companies played a crucial role in global shipping markets in the 20th century at times transporting more than ten per cent of world seaborne trade Chapters explore how Norway managed to remain competitive despite being a high labour cost country in an industry with global competition Among the features that are emphasised are market developments business strategies and political decisions The Norwegian experience was shaped by the main breaking points in 20th century world history such as the two world wars and by long term trends such as globalization and liberalization The shipping companies introduced technological and organizational innovations to build or maintain a competitive advantage in a rapidly changing world The growing importance of offshore petroleum exploration in the North Sea from the 1970s was both a threat and an opportunity to the shipping companies By adapting both business strategies and the political regime to the new circumstances the Norwegian shipping sector managed to maintain a leading position internationally Review of the Trade of India in ... ,1917 Jellicoe's War Nicholas Jellicoe,2024-12-31 In February 1917 German U boats launched a savage unrestricted campaign against both Allied and neutral shipping At its peak in April 860 000 tons of Allied merchant shipping was sunk Britain's supremacy at sea was being severely challenged and with it the chances of victory in the wider war. Taking up the challenge was Britain's new First Sea Lord Sir John Jellicoe until the previous December. C in C of the Grand Fleet famously described by Churchill as the only man who could have lost the war in an afternoon. The battle he now faced was equally critical although the timeline of defeat was a matter of days rather than hours. Britain's food stocks were dangerously low with wheat reserves down to six weeks and sugar to only two while wide scale shortages were crippling the industrial economy. Jellicoe outlined the gravity of the situation with total candor to Rear Admiral William Sims USN sent over before America officially declared war by Franklin Roosevelt the Assistant Secretary of the Navy. The two men already knew each other from service together in China during the Boxer Rebellion so Jellicoe's plea for urgent American assistance was taken seriously by Sims. After the USA joined the war in April 1917 together they lobbied Washington for aid addressing their needs directly to two reluctant Anglophobes at the head of the USN Secretary of the Navy Josephus Daniels and Chief of Naval Operations William Benson. Clearly a radical new approach to anti submarine warfare was called for and Convoy was the leading contender. There were many objections to protecting shipping in this way some ideological but most practical a workable system for example effectively required state control of both shipping and distribution networks something inconceivable in normal circumstances. However Convoy had powerful advocates including the Prime Minister Lloyd George who later claimed he had personally forced its adoption on a reluctant Admiralty. This self serving political myth cast Jellicoe as an opponent of Convoy nothing could be further from the truth. As both Jellicoe and Sims understood the key requirement was a rapid increase in the number of destroyers for escort duties. America provided them the first arriving in Queenstown Ireland on 4 May and by June 46 were operating in European waters. This was the first step in an Anglo American campaign that gradually brought the U boat threat under control and led to its ultimate defeat. This book takes a fresh look at the undersea war as a whole and all the complex factors bearing on the campaign only one of which was convoy. Its analysis is original and its conclusions thought provoking an important contribution to the naval history of the Great War.
