Shipwrecks and the Bounty of the Sea is a work of social history examining community relationships law and seafaring over the long early modern period It explores the politics of the coastline the economy of scavenging and the law of wreck of the sea from the beginning of the reign of Elizabeth I to the end of the reign of George II England's coastlines were heavily trafficked by naval and commercial shipping but an unfortunate percentage was cast away or lost Shipwrecks were disasters for merchants and mariners but opportunities for shore dwellers As the proverb said it was an ill wind that blew nobody any good Lords of manors local officials officers of the Admiralty and coastal commoners competed for maritime cargoes and the windfall of wreckage which they regarded as providential godsend or entitlements by right A varied haul of commodities wines furnishings and bullion came ashore much of it claimed by the crown The people engaged in salvaging these wrecks came to be called wreckers and gained a reputation as violent and barbarous plunderers Close attention to statements of witnesses and reports of survivors shows this image to be largely undeserved Dramatic evidence from previously unexplored manuscript sources reveals coastal communities in action collaborating as well as competing as they harvested the bounty of the sea Sea Breezes, 2006 Taxing Wages 2007 OECD, 2008-03-26 Taxing Wages provides unique information on
