Play The Home Place:

The Home Place Robert Drake, 1998 In this joyous reminiscence of a small town boyhood in West Tennessee Drake reflects upon his family's origins flowering and eventual decline and ponders the meaning of their lives It is a story with which many a Southerner who has grown up in twentieth century America will readily identify As a chronicle in microcosm of the gradual disintegration of the traditional extended family that has taken place all across the country in this turbulent century it speaks to modern humankind everywhere Drake concludes that the old tales about the home place were what held the family together long after the place itself was gone The Drakes were rooted in the goodness of God and the joy of the Lord The gift they had been given a happiness based ultimately on love and joy in all God's creation they in turn passed on to their family and all who came in contact with them History and geography also helped give the Drakes their identities they knew who they were because they knew where they were and when they were with no alienation from either time or place Their lives were thus whole and full Their home their family their community were all very real entities nourishing and sustaining the individual member while giving him a sense of belonging to something greater than himself They gave order and meaning to his life The times have changed but who can say that the world of the Drakes is any less meaningful to us today Perhaps the memories of that world constitute a rebuke to our frenetic lives But perhaps the legacy of their lives their times and above all their great love can still exert its healing power on modern generations

There's No Place Like Home: Place and Care in an Ageing Society Christine Milligan, 2016-02-17 Against a background of debate around global ageing and what this means in terms of the future care need of older people this book addresses key concerns about the nature and site of care and care giving Following a critical review of research into who cares where and how it uses geographical perspectives to present a comprehensive analysis of how the intersection of informal care giving within domestic community and residential care homes can create complex landscapes and organizational spatialities of care Drawing on contemporary case studies largely but not exclusively from the UK the book reviews and develops a theoretical basis for a geographical analysis of the issue of care By relating these theoretical concepts to empirical data and case studies it illustrates how formal and informal care giver responses to the changing landscape of care can act to facilitate or constrain the development of inclusionary models of care

Irelands of the Mind Richard C. Allen, Stephen Regan, 2009-01-14 Irelands of the Mind Memory and Identity in Modern Irish Culture offers a compelling series of essays on changing images of Ireland from the mid nineteenth century to the present It seeks to understand the various ways in which Ireland has been thought about not only in fiction poetry and drama but in travel writing and tourist brochures nineteenth century newspapers radio talk shows film adaptations of fictional works and the music and songs of Van Morrison and Sinéad O'Connor The prevailing theme throughout the twelve essays that constitute the book is the complicated sense of belonging that continues to characterise so much of modern Irish culture Questions of nationhood and national identity are given a new and invigorated treatment in the context of a rapidly changing Ireland and a changing set of intellectual methods and approaches Brian Friel: Plays 3 Brian Friel, 2014-02-04 This third collection by Brian Friel contains two original works Performances which considers the relationship between the private life and public work of the composer Leos Janacek and The Home Place set in Ballybeg Donegal at the dawn of Home Rule There are three masterful plays based on stories by Chekhov and Friel's exquisite versions of Three Sisters and Uncle Vanya of Ibsen's Hedda Gabler and of Turgenev's A Month in the Country Performances A minor work the way Thomas Mann's Death in Venice or Beckett's Endgame is a minor work Deceptively brisk and light in tone but taut and gravely pregnant with meaning for Friel life creates its own symbolism and poetry and so it does in this play Sunday Times The Home Place A rich allusive densely layered play which has echoes of Friel's masterly Translations while reminding one that he has spent much of his recent life adapting and translating Chekhov Friel hauntingly conveys the pathos of exile and the delusion of ownership Guardian Hedda Gabler Across the gulf of the 20th century one great playwright is talking to another neither a simple translation nor as the official title has it or a new version but something altogether larger The Irish Times The Methuen Drama Guide to Contemporary Irish Playwrights Martin Middeke, Peter Paul Schnierer, 2010-08-10 The Methuen Drama Guide to Contemporary Irish Playwrights is an authoritative guide to the work of twenty five playwrights from the last 50 years whose work has helped to shape and define Irish theatre Written by a team of international scholars it provides an illuminating survey and analysis of each writer's plays and will be invaluable to anyone interested in studying or teaching contemporary Irish drama The playwrights examined range from John B Keane Brian Friel and Tom Murphy to the crop of writers who emerged in the 1990s and who include Martin McDonagh Marina Carr Emma Donoghue and Mark O Rowe Each essay features a biographical sketch and introduction to the playwright a discussion of their most important plays an analysis of their stylistic and thematic traits the critical reception and their place in the discourses of Irish theatre a bibliography of texts and critical material With a total of 190 plays discussed in detail over half of which were written during the 1990s and 2000s The Methuen Drama Guide to Contemporary Irish Playwrights is unrivalled in its study of recent plays and playwrights Making Place Stephan Feuchtwang, 2004 To make a place is to create a location where its creators can feel they belong Processes of place making are still very much ongoing today Geographers sociologists political scientists and philosophers of advanced capitalism have said that place is a localisation of the global However the creation of a place is not legible from such grand perspectives It is also much more creative than can be predicted by translating large scale processes into local cultures Anthropologists have been sensitive to the intimate tragic and lyrical senses of local place But their theorising has been too much bound up with cosmology and insufficiently with the intermediate scales of state and local state In this book Stephan Feuchtwang and his contributors offer a set of historical anthropological and scale mediated studies from China a country that includes a subcontinental variety of cultures and landscapes In the twentieth century it experienced collapse in civil war and was then reasserted as a particularly strong state Now it is managing the fastest growing capitalist economy in the world These intriguing Chinese studies contribute to the anthropology of place and space providing an historical perspective on processes of change and of accommodation to disruption The stories they tell are fascinating in their own right but in addition the result is a critical reformulation of previous theories of place that geographers philosophers historians and anthropologists will find of great interest

Private Goes Public: Self-Narrativisation in Brian Friel's Plays Gaby Frey, 2015-11-25 In Brian Friel's writing the distinction between public and private is closely linked to the concepts of home family identity and truth This study examines the characters excessive introspection and their deep seated need to disclose their most intimate knowledge and private truths to define who they are and thus to oppose dominant discourse or avoid heteronomy This study begins by investigating how a number of Anglo Irish writers publicised their characters private versions of truth thereby illustrating what they perceived to be the space of Irishness The book then focuses on Friel's techniques of sharing his character's private views to demonstrate how he adopted and adapted these practices in his own oeuvre As the characters superficial inarticulateness and their vivid inner selves are repeatedly juxtaposed in Friel's texts his oeuvre quintessentially displays a great unease with the concepts of communication and absolute truth

A New Ireland in Brazil, 2008 The Han Agnieszka Joniak-Luthi, 2015-06-24 This ethnography explores contemporary narratives of Han-ness revealing the nuances of what Han identity means today in relation to that of the fifty-five officially recognized minority ethnic groups in China as well as in relation to home place identities and the country's national identity Based on research she conducted among native and migrant Han in Shanghai and Beijing Aqsu in Xinjiang and the Sichuan Yunnan border area Agnieszka Joniak Luthi uncovers and discusses these identity topographies Bringing into focus the Han majority which has long acted as an unexamined backdrop to ethnic minorities Joniak Luthi contributes to the emerging field of critical Han studies as she considers how the Han describe themselves particularly what unites and divides them as well as the functions of Han identity and the processes through which it is maintained and reproduced The Han will appeal to scholars and students of contemporary China anthropology and ethnic and cultural studies
