

Endurance

Watch Out!

Here is where the study begins! This is a very extensive endurance exercise for the embouchure that continues for several pages. It's a very useful study, and though it's long and tedious, the results are fantastic!

The embouchure and the sound will both improve by practicing this study. Yes, it is a calisthenic exercise. It focuses on muscular development needed to withstand the "job" the mouthpiece does against the lips. It is very important to lower the pressure of the mouthpiece on the lips. How can this be done? By strengthening the muscles around the lips. All the facial muscles contribute to increased endurance.

There is no real "secret" to endurance. It is nothing more than having prepared correctly so that the muscles respond and collaborate to help the lips withstand the full impact of the mouthpiece.

Practice the entire exercise, but feel free to rest as much as you need if you get tired along the way. In the middle of the exercise, before letter N of Section I, you will find a 10-minute break. Then continue through Section II until you finish the entire exercise. After this you should rest and relax for at least 15 minutes.
